Nomination of a Democratic State Ticket and Delegates to Baltimore—A Greeley Clique Control the Convention.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 12.—The Democratic State Convention met here today, and nominated Hon. THOMAS A. HENDRICKS as candidate for Governor; WASHINGTON DEPAUW, of New-Albany, for Lieutenant-Governor; Col. JOHN S. WILLIAMS, of Lafayette, and M. L. KERR, present member of Congress for the Second District, as candidates for Congressmen at large. For Secretary of State, OWEN EDDY SON, nominated, for Auditor, JOHN B. STALL, for Treasurer, JAMES B. RYAN. No Liberal Republicans were nominated; several were announced, but their only complimented by fourteen votes. The Convention was large and enthusiastic, and the sentiment of the majority was straight in favor of the tedious device of the nomination of GREELEY and BROWN; though a clamorous minority interposed its negative. Delegates to the Baltimore Convention were not instructed further than to vote with the majority of delegations there assembled. Mr. HENDRICKS, in his speech of acceptance, did not allude to the work of the Cincinnati Convention, but said he would accept the decision of the Democracy at Baltimore. Mr. HENDRICKS' equivocal utterances; the fact that the Convention, after starting discussion, postponed the selection of an electoral ticket until after the Baltimore Convention; and the refusal to nominate a Liberal Republican, are taken as evidences that the Liberals have been sold out. The excursion of the Convention, however, was decidedly in favor of the Cincinnati nomination, to which the Democracy of Indiana are now fully committed. The text of the resolutions was taken from GREELEY's letter of acceptance, and elaborated by copious extracts from the resolutions of the Convention that placed him in nomination, and they explicitly declare that it is impolitic to nominate another candidate for the Presidency. In this, as all through, the voices of straight Democrats were overruled by claquers, and that element retired in disgust. The spirit and action of the Convention are regarded by Republicans as the complete abandonment of party organization and chances in a national contest, in the desperate hope of securing success in the State.

The following is the text of the resolutions:

First—All the political rights and franchises which have been acquired through the late bloody convulsion, and shall be guaranteed, maintained, employed, and respected everywhere.

Second—All the political rights and franchises which have been lost through that convulsion should and must be restored and established, so that there shall be henceforth no proscribed class and no disfranchised caste within the limits of our Union, whose long-continued wrongs should remain as a barrier upon the broad basis of universal amnesty with impartial suffrage.

Third—That, subject to our solemn constitutional obligation to maintain the equal rights of all citizens, the policy should ever be to local self-government, and not as centralization; that the civil authority should be supreme over the military; that the writ of habeas corpus should be seal-ously upheld as the safeguard of personal freedom; that the individual citizens should enjoy the largest liberty consistent with public order; that there should be no Federal supervision of the internal policy of the several States; that the idea, but that each should be left free to enforce the right and promote the well-being of its inhabitants by such means as the judgment of its people should prescribe.

Fourth—That we hold that it is the duty of a dissolute reform in the civil service of the Republic to which end it is indispensable that the chief dispenser of its vast official patronage shall be shielded from the more powerful temptation to use his power to rule inexorably forbidding and precluding his re-election.

Resolved, That we regard it as unwise and imprudent to place candidates for nomination for the offices of President and Vice-President, as the representatives of these principles, as the division of its friends would insure the defeat of both; and it is therefore the sense of this Convention that the National Democratic Convention to assemble in Baltimore in July should adopt the nominee of the Liberal Republican Convention, instead of making other nominations for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency of the United States.

Resolved, That the delegates appointed to the Baltimore Convention from this State be and are hereby instructed to act upon all questions that may come in consideration with the opinion of a majority of the delegation.

Whereas, The Union soldiers and sailors by their patriotic valor, during the rebellion of 1861, 1862, preserved the life of the nation and made our public domain valuable; therefore

Resolved, That we demand for each of the living who will hereafter apply a quarter section of the public lands, and heretofore entered as given away by a Republican Congress to railroad corporations, to be their absolutely without requiring them to become actual settlers or thereon dwellers.

Resolved, That justice and equality demand that all the soldiers who enlisted in the military service of the country during the war of the rebellion, and who have honorably served the full term of enlistment, have a bounty granted to them by Congress in proportion to the time they may have served, whether that time shall have been for three months or a longer period.

MISSOURI.

The Democrats at the State Convention Out-Generaled by the Greeleyites.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., June 12.—The Democratic State Convention held in this city today for the purpose of choosing delegates to the Baltimore Convention has just adjourned. The entire State was represented, but the proceedings of the body showed the success of the Liberals in securing a representation to indorse Cincinnati. GROVESTON, who first presided at Cincinnati, HYDE, of the St. Louis Republican, and other originators of the Liberal movement, were in attendance themselves to secure an indorsement of the Greeley ticket. After a heated debate, the delegates were instructed to vote as a unit against any nomination at Baltimore. GOLDING, of St. Louis, and others, who rose to speak against the resolution thus instructing the delegates, were served with hisses by the Greeley men, and such commotion obtained that the advocates of a straight-out Democratic nomination failed in every instance to secure a hearing. The vote was by no means unanimous, and much bitterness of feeling prevails among the regular Democrats at the decision finally reached by the Convention.

MAINE.

Preparations for the Meeting of the Republican Convention.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

LEWISTON, Me., June 12.—The delegates to the Convention, to-morrow, have already arrived in large numbers, and the hotels are crowded. The attendance is unexpectedly large, as there is no contest about nominations or platform. Gov. PERHAM will be renominated by acclamation and Hon. S. E. SPRING, of Portland, and Gen. L. P. HALE, of Bangor, will be chosen as electors at large on the Presidential ticket. The State Committee are now in session, and have agreed upon Hon. JOSEPH W. POTTER, of Burlington, as temporary President, and Col. G. M. SMITH, of Portland, and Col. E. S. DENNIS, of Augusta, as temporary Secretaries. Some discussion was made as to the temperance plank of the platform; some contending that nothing should be said, as it is the record of the party on the subject is clear; others hold that the prohibition policy must be reaffirmed. Probably a resolution generally approving the prohibitory policy will be passed without reference to the special legislation of last Winter. The Philadelphia platform will be enforced, and the candidates approved. Civil service reform will be indorsed, the action of the Maine delegation in Congress on this subject being cordially approved. The delegates will be instructed to vote for the ticket nominated at Cincinnati, and the sentiment of the party is for ELIOT for Congressman at large. The best of feeling prevails among the delegates; and a full confidence in the result in this State. All reports indicate that the Greeley movement has but few adherents among Republicans, and the dangers from this source are trifling. Some diminution of the majority is anticipated in the cities of the temperance legislation of last Winter, but partially compensating gains will be made in the rural districts. P.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Nomination of Republican State Officers—Struggle Over the Senatorship.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., June 12.—The Republican members of the Legislature held a caucus this evening, in Rumford Hall, for the purpose of nominating State officers. BENJ. F. PRESCOTT, of Concord, Secretary of the Interim State Committee, was nominated for Secretary of State. Col. SOLON A. CARTER, of Keene, for State Treasurer, ORIN C. MOORE, Esq., of Nashua, and editor of the Nashua Telegraph, for State Printer, and CHARLES F. MONTGOMERY, Esq., of Stafford, for Commissary-General. At this caucus it was decided to hold the caucus for nominating United States Senator to-morrow, Thursday, evening. The Senatorial question is causing considerable interest and excitement in the city. A large number of the friends of the several candidates are on the ground, and the hotels are crowded with the leading Republicans of the State. It is impossible to form a correct conclusion as to the result. The candidates are Jacob H. Gallinger, W. E. Patterson, E. H. Rollins, Ex-Gov. Onslow Stevens, Hon. Mason W. Tappan, Gen. Gilman Marston, and others. At this hour the indications are favorable to the renomination of Senator PATTERSON, although those who favor retention are actively at work.

MICHIGAN.

Meeting of the Temperance Party for State Convention.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

JACKSON, Mich., June 12.—The State Prohibition Convention was held at Lansing today, with Hon. E. C. MANCHESTER, for the Great, President, and C. P. RUSSELL, Detroit, Secretary. Among the delegates four ladies were in attendance. The usual committees were appointed. The resolutions passed stated that in absence of any satisfactory evidence that the party now in power intends to enact sufficient laws and faithfully execute them against the liquor traffic, the Prohibition Party deem it necessary in order to the ultimate success of the great principles, to again place in nomination a State ticket and ask for its candidates the suffrages of the people. That the platform passed at Chicago be indorsed, and pledging support to BLACK and RUSSELL, President and Vice-President. That the policy of raising national revenue by assessment on vice is different from taxing luxuries, and involves a false political principle, and hence they are opposed to a national revenue from the liquor trade. That as parties usually grow worse after disposing of the issues which call them into existence; that the Republican Party is, by the diversity of opinion of its members, disqualified to redress the new political wrongs, therefore a new organization is needed. In answer to the sixteenth resolution of the Republican platform, the Convention reply that prohibition of the liquor traffic is not unconstitutional legislation, nor is it an effort at removing evils by interference with rights not surrendered by the people to other State or National Governments. The State officers nominated were as follows: Governor, Hon. Henry Fish, Port Huron; Lieutenant-Governor, W. G. Brown, Jackson; Secretary of State, John Evans, Bellevue; Treasurer, E. C. Manchester, Battle Creek; Attorney General, D. P. Sagendorph, Charlotte; Superintendent Public Instruction, President Mahan, Adrian College; Commissioner of Land Office, J. S. Tuttle Niles; Auditor General, Wm. Allman Sturgis; Electors, Charles P. Russell, Detroit; John Strong, Jr., Monroe; A. D. Spaulding, Hastings; G. A. Granger, Pawpaw; L. E. Atwater, Grand Rapids; C. K. Carpenter, Oakland; J. S. Skinner, St. Clair; Jesse M. Miller, Bay City; J. F. Balder, New-Ayge. At large—Jacob Sagendorph, Jackson; Jesse L. Stout, Oakland, members to a Central and Congressional Committee, were appointed. The motion to appoint five ladies on an Executive Committee, created much discussion, and was finally dropped. Mrs. Vesta Allen, Lansing; Mrs. L. B. Stryker, Hastings; Mrs. J. Sagendorph, Jackson; Miss Victor, Lansing; Mrs. A. R. Ball, Grand Lodge.

INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION.

Seventeenth Annual Meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association—Encouraging Reports from Its Officers.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

LOWELL, Mass., June 12.—The seventeenth International Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association met at Huntington Hall at 11 o'clock this morning. L. P. ROWLAND, Jr., of Boston, Vice-President of the Washington Convention, called the Convention to order, and read a letter from JOHN WANNAMAKER, of Philadelphia, President of the last Convention, announcing his inability to be present on account of illness. Prayer was offered by Rev. GEO. A. HALL, of Washington; a temporary Committee of Business, Mr. CHEVER, of Cincinnati, Chairman, was appointed; also a Committee on Credentials, GEO. LANDERHAM, of Montreal, Chairman, and a Committee on Permanent Organization of one from each State, Territory and province.

At 3 o'clock the afternoon session was called to order by Vice-President ROWLAND. The Committee on Permanent Organization reported for permanent officers as follows: President, H. THANE MILLER, of Cincinnati; Vice-Presidents, Hon. John D. Hill, member of Congress, New-Jersey; James H. Fraliam, Alabama; W. H. Irvin, West Virginia; R. R. Watts, Indiana; E. W. Chase, Minnesota; Robert Windmill, Nebraska; Rev. J. Anderson, Connecticut. They were unanimously elected. Mr. HUTCHINGS, of New-York, read the report of the Executive Committee; it claims 344 associations in States and Provinces, an increase of 70 during the year. The membership is 22,000. Twenty-seven associations have buildings valued at $1,200,000. Twenty associations have been established in the South. Reports were also read from the agents of the Executive Committee, ROBT. C. MORSE, of New-York, and ROBT. WEIDENSALL, of Nebraska. The welcome meeting in the evening was addressed by Gov. WASHBURN, of Massachusetts; JOSIAH G. PEABODY, Mayor of Lowell; CHAS. W. SLOCUM, President of the Lowell Association; H. THANE MILLER, President of the Convention; Hon. JOHN J. HILL, of New-Jersey, and others. A large and enthusiastic audience were in attendance. H. P. C.

VERMONT.

Delegates to Baltimore Chosen—They Are to Do What the Rest Do.

MONTPELIER, Vt., June 12.—The Democratic State Convention to elect delegates to the National Convention was held here to day. The attendance was uncommonly large, nearly 200 delegates being present. Resolutions were adopted indorsing the Cincinnati platform and favoring union with any who hold to its principles.

H. B. Smith, Geo. H. Weeks, W. F. Horrobin, and A. W. Heaton were chosen delegates at large, and E. H. Bradley, J. E. Williams, S. W. Allen, C. J. Soper, Thomas Keefe and Lucius Robinson District delegates.

These delegates will favor the nomination of GREELEY or a straight-out Democrat, as may seem best when the National Convention assembles.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

The Democratic State Convention—The Platform Policy Recommended to Their Honors.

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 12.—The Democratic State Convention reassembled this morning. The Committee on Resolutions reported the following which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this Convention, in the name of the people of this State, do hereby declare to the world our unalterable adherence to the principles of Democracy, as laid down in the Cincinnati platform, and that we do hereby instruct our delegates in the National Convention to vote for the nomination of the Cincinnati platform, as broad, liberal, and just to all sections and classes of our common country.

Resolved, That it is the sense of this Convention that the Electors of the whole country should be made by the Baltimore Convention, and the delegates appointed by this body are hereby instructed to oppose such nomination.

A minority report favoring a straight nomination at Baltimore was tabled with only two dissenting votes.

A full delegation to the National Convention was then chosen. It represents all sections of the State, and includes Hon. WILLIAM AIKEN, Ex-Senator CHESNUT and Hon. W. D. PORTER. The State Executive Committee having resigned, the Chair was authorized to appoint their successors.

The Convention then adjourned sine die, after a brief and harmonious session.

MASSACHUSETTS.

District Delegates to Baltimore Chosen—The Cincinnati Platform Accepted.

LOWELL, Mass., June 12.—The Democrats of the Seventh Massachusetts District met in Convention here today and elected E. M. COLCORD, of Lawrence, and JOSEPH R. HAYES, of Lowell, delegates to the National Convention at Baltimore. A resolution recommending the adoption at Baltimore of the Cincinnati platform was passed.

LOWELL, Mass., June 12.—Dr. JOSIAH H. SMITH, one of the delegates elected today from the Seventh Massachusetts District to the Baltimore Convention, was a member of the first convention of Democrats never held in the country at its formal organization in 1832. He was then delegate from New-Hampshire.

The Ninth District Convention Refuses to Instruct for Greeley.

WORCESTER, Mass., June 12.—The Democratic Convention for the Ninth Congressional District, to choose delegates to the Baltimore Convention, was held in this city today. W. A. Williams, of Worcester, and Jeremiah Gotchell, of Blackstone, were elected delegates, and Edwin Sargent, of Worcester, and Lyman Spaulding, of Webster, alternates. The Convention refused to instruct a caucus to manage the delegation to vote for Greeley.

MARYLAND.

The Baltimore "Blood-Tubs" Indorse the Cincinnati Candidates.

BALTIMORE, June 12.—At the primaries held yesterday afternoon in this city, for the election of delegates to the City Convention to nominate candidates to the Democratic State Convention, every ward in the city elected delegates in favor of GREELEY and BROWN.

MEXICO.

Gradual Suppression of the Rebellion—Confidence in the Government Restored.

MATAMORAS, June 12.—A courier extraordinary arrived here today with the news that Col. REVULTAS, who held Monterey for the Government several days after the defeat of Gen. CORNELA, has reached Saltillo with about 600 men and occupied that place, where he was joined by 2,000 Government troops from Matapuala. This force is believed to be sufficient to prevent the revolutionists from advancing in that direction.

Gen. CERRALLOS telegraphs today that he has established his head-quarters at Camargo, and has repulsed several attempts of the revolutionists to advance toward the frontier, and will be able to check their intended march on the city.

The city is quiet, and confidence in the ability of the Government to retrieve the last disaster is being manifested.

Later Details of Operations About Monterey—The City Sacked by Both Armies.

MATAMORAS, June 12.—The official bulletin of Gen. TREVINO relating to the battle of Monterey on the 30th, reached here today. He announces a complete victory over the Government forces, and the capture of all their supplies after an engagement in which his own army sustained severe loss. Col. REVULTAS, with several hundred Government soldiers, held Monterey until the 31 inst., when he was dislodged and retired to Saltillo, pursued by Gen. LAND and others. Between the 30th May and 1st of June the City of Monterey was sacked by the soldiers of both sides, and large amounts of property stolen. Several of the principal stores were completely cleaned out. Col. STRAIN, an American well and favorably known in northern Mexico, and few years a resident of Monterey, who was serving on the staff of Gen. TREVINO, was killed. Many youths of the city serving in the National Guard were also killed. Whole City has been plundered, and is represented to be in a state of mourning for those killed in action. Nearly every family has lost some member.

THE INDIANS.

Depredations Near a Military Post in Arizona—Cattle Stolen and Settlers Killed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 12.—Reports from Capt. SMITH, of the Twenty-third Infantry, commanding Camp Crittenden, Arizona, mention that on the 26th of April several depredations were committed near that post, herds having been driven off, and in one instance a Mexican in charge was killed. On the 9th inst. an attack was made on the ranch of THOS. WHITMAN, eight miles below the post. Whitman, who was sick in bed, was killed, his wife, though wounded by lances, made her escape to a neighboring ranch. There is much excitement and alarm in the valley. It is believed that the Indians who committed these depredations are Pinal Apaches, and also that there was quite a force of them engaged in the outrages.

THE WEATHER.

Barometer and Temperatures.

WASHINGTON, June 12—1 A. M.—The lowest barometer north of the lower lakes has moved eastward over Northern New-England, accompanied by fresh and brisk southerly winds, veering to westerly, cloudy weather and areas of rain from the lower lakes eastward over New-England, partially cloudy, but clearing weather, with light to fresh southerly to westerly winds is now prevailing over the New-England and Middle States; clear weather, with light southerly winds, over the Southern States very generally; clear and partially cloudy weather and light to fresh and brisk southeasterly to southwesterly winds north and west of the Ohio Valley, with occasional areas of light rain.

PROBABILITIES.

Clear weather and winds gradually backing to southerly over the New-England and Middle States. Clear and partially cloudy weather, with light to fresh southerly winds over the Southern States, with possibly threatening weather and areas of rain over the lower Mississippi valley. Increasing cloudiness, winds backing to southerly and easterly. Wind and very probably areas of rain over the North-west, and extend eastward over the upper lake region, the lower Ohio valley, and possibly the lower lake region. Dangerous winds are not anticipated.

Pennsylvania Miners on a Strike.

HAZELTON, Penn., June 12.—The mines at Jeanesville, Beaver Brook, Tracedale and Honey Brook suspended work this morning. The miners give as their reason for striking that operators refuse to allow them to hire their own laborers, which is in direct opposition to Judge ELWELL's decision. The operators, on the other hand, claim that the miners were hiring men from other collieries on strikes, which is also contrary to ELWELL's decision. The men are orderly, and everything points to a long suspension in the disaffected district.

FOREIGN TELEGRAMS.

One of the Leading English Novelists Coming to America.

The Jesuits to be Expelled from Germany.

French Politicians Boasting Dissatisfied with President Thiers.

DR. LIVINGSTONE.

The Veteran Explorer Still Proceeding Eastward—An Unfortunate Freak.

LONDON, June 12.—A Bombay telegram, received here today, contains information about LIVINGSTONE, derived from Arab sources, which shows him to be well. STANLEY is at Ujiji, and is coming to the coast with LIVINGSTONE's letters. It appears that LIVINGSTONE traversed the north end of Lake Tanganyika on his way from Manyema to Ujiji, where, obtaining stores, he returned to Uyanyembe. He refuses to leave the country, intending to explore an underground path between Lakes Uyanyembe and Nyasa. It is affirmed that the River Bugre flows into Lake Tanganyika, and some think Sangaruyaka is not connected with the Nile.

GREAT BRITAIN.

A Prominent Literary Man Coming to America.

LONDON, June 12.—Mr. EDMUND YATES, the well-known English author, who has resigned his clerkship in the General Post-office, and is about to visit America on a lecturing tour, was entertained at a dinner last night by a large number of his friends. Mr. F. IVES SCHMAKER, Director-General of the Post-office Telegraphs, presided. Among the persons present were GEORGE AUGUSTUS SALA, SHIRLEY BROOKS and many of the London editors.

The Colonial match of the Royal Thames Yacht Club took place today. The course was from the Nore to Dover. Spurs came in first, but by time allowance the Fiona, which was second, was awarded the prize. The Kriemhilde was disabled during the race and towed into port by a tug.

GERMANY.

The Jesuits to be Banished from the Country.

BERLIN, June 12.—A bill is being prepared for the Federal Council providing for the expulsion of all Jesuits from Germany, even though they be native.

LUXEMBOURG, June 12.—The treaty giving Germany working control over the Luxemburg railways has been signed. The Germans capitulate never to make use of the roads for the transportation of warlike material in time of war.

FRANCE.

General Dissatisfaction at the Course of President Thiers.

PARIS, June 12.—The demeanor of President THIERS during the debate in the National Assembly, on Monday last, on the amendment to the Army bill, reducing the term of military service from five to four years, greatly irritated the members of all political parties. A number of meetings, at which dissatisfaction with the remarks of his Excellency were expressed, have been held.

At the session of the Assembly, yesterday, M. RAUDOT, a Deputy, in alluding to M. THIERS, charged him with possessing all the arrogance of the first NAPOLEON.

CANADIAN PARLIAMENT.

Illegal Seizures by American Officers—Signal of Duty on Tea and Coffee—Address to Lord Lisgar.

OTTAWA, Canada, June 12.—In the House last night Mr. BLAKE asked the Government to convey to the House any information in their possession in reference to the statement contained in the Press, to the effect that a person has been seized in open day in the City of London, Ontario, and carried to the American side, and whether there had been any communication on the subject with the United States or Imperial Government. Sir JOHN MACDONALD replied that a few days ago the Government was informed by telegraph of the arrest of a party in the manner mentioned in the newspapers, and instructions were at once given to send down depositions and statements of fact and evidence. These papers were received yesterday, and upon them a report had been prepared and submitted to Her Majesty's Minister at Washington, in order that representations in the matter might be made to the United States Government, and a similar report had been prepared for the Imperial Government.

Sir FRANCIS HINCKS moved that the House go in Committee on the resolution for the repeal of the tea and coffee duties. He explained that the resolution now proposed that all tea and coffee imported from any country other than the United States should come in duty free, but that a similar duty should be charged on those articles imported from the United States, as Americans imposed on tea and coffee imported from places other than countries of its production.

Mr. McKENZIE said it appeared to him that this was a violation of treaty obligations with the United States, by which we were bound not to make any discriminating duties in any case. He did not believe in retaliatory legislation, and did not think we should impose burdens on our people because another country imposed burdens on theirs.

Mr. JONES objected to these cries of "retaliatory" and "free trade" being raised whenever any tariff question was discussed. The people of the United States legislated for the benefit of their own people, and did not consider whether it was retaliatory or not, and we should adopt the same course.

Mr. McKENZIE said he observed in one of the statements that had lately been published, that the merchants of Chicago and Detroit would be able in future to bring in tea four or five cents per pound cheaper by railway than by sea. The result of this increased facility for importing would be that the merchants in the western part of the country, in Manitoba and in other parts, would be able to bring tea from the United States cheaper than it would be possible to bring it from Montreal. The course which the honorable gentleman proposed, however, would be discriminating against its introduction from that quarter and in favor of its importation by Montreal. The honorable gentleman had no right to propose that, for it was a vicious kind of legislation.

Sir FRANCIS HINCKS said there were merchants in Toronto, and he dared to say there were merchants in other Western cities, who imported direct from China. They were entirely satisfied with this arrangement, and under it they could import direct from China by way of San Francisco, free of duty, so that they could bring tea in quite as cheaply as it could be obtained from American merchants. The proposed measure would not interfere with our trade obligations with the United States. The resolution was carried.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD moved the presentation to Lord LISGAR of a complimentary address upon his departure from Canada. The Premier paid a fitting tribute to the fairness and impartiality of the Governor-General in the discharge of his high duties.

Mr. McKENZIE seconded the motion, fully indorsing the sentiments expressed in the resolution.

Other members spoke, warmly eulogizing his Excellency, and the motion was unanimously carried.

Several Destructive Fires in Chicago Yesterday.

CHICAGO, June 12.—A number of destructive fires occurred in the city today. This forenoon the large barn of JONES BROTHERS, in the south-western part of the city, was totally destroyed. Sixteen horses were burned to death. Loss $4,000. This afternoon the planing mill of LOUIS & FERGUSON, corner Taroop and Twenty-second streets caught fire, and the building and contents were damaged to the amount of $15,000. There was no insurance on the stock of $1,000 each in the North Missouri and Allemania Companies; $2,000 on building to the Aetna, of Cincinnati.

A fire broke out about 8 P. M. in STANRAVS' Mills, No. 1,000 Milwaukee-avenue, occupied by George Rosenwald & Co., and considerably damaged by water. Rosenwald, the director, with his personal loss on the building, $2,000. The loss to Rosenwald & Co. on the stock and machinery is about $8,000. No. 1,001, occupied as a saloon, and Nos. 1,003 to the rear, loss of $1,000. Shortly after midnight, a cottage, No. 1,000 Milwaukee-avenue, caught fire and was burned to the ground. The occupants claim their loss to be $1,000, upon which there is no insurance.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS.

Mr. Schurz Confident Lucrative Appointment—Expected Improvement of the Capital Grounds.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The news here of the nomination of Horatio for Governor of Indiana meets with a hearty response, as it is held to be a sure indication that the Baltimore Convention will not put a third ticket in the field. The only anxiety that has been expressed here by Republican politicians in regard to the Democratic Convention has been lest it should take up some new man who would be more acceptable to the Democratic masses than GREELEY, and who would at the same time make more inroads than he can from the Republican ranks. There is now no reason to expect any such action. Meantime news of Mr. GREELEY's weakness daily comes forward from sources which ought to be good since they are not friendly to GRANT. The feeling in Delaware, notwithstanding his Convention has been compelled by the little clique that runs that little State in obedience to outside dictation, it is represented, to swallow GREELEY, is very hostile to him. A Republican office-holder in that State sent word to a Senator, that if Baltimore indorsed GREELEY, the electoral vote of the State would be cast for GRANT and WILSON. Lest an office-holder's report might be too rosy, Senator SAULSBURY was approached on that subject, and he said he had little doubt that the opinion was correct, "and," said he, "Delaware will have a Democratic National ticket to vote for whether any other State in the Union has or not." A half-dozen States like Maryland, West Virginia and Kentucky, are considered as likely to vote for GRANT as against GREELEY. Little J. C. CONNER, of Texas, does not take kindly to the Greeley programme. He says he may support him, and his people may, but that neither he nor they have any heart in it. They would prefer a straight Democratic ticket.

STRAIGHTENING AT THE CAPITOL.

A law passed by Congress, during the session just closed, authorized the purchase of two squares of ground, to be added to the public grounds surrounding the Capitol. These squares are situated, one north and one south of the improved grounds east of the Capitol, and when included and improved will make the boundary of the Capitol grounds regular and uniform, and will cut off all parts of the Capitol building from any of the public streets. The steps necessary to procure a condemnation of the property on the two squares have been already taken. The plans for their improvement have been made by Mr. EDWARD CLARK, architect of the Capitol, and were today approved by the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds. A plan for the improvement of the grades of approaches was last year fixed by a Commission, and is ordered to be adopted by the law above alluded to. The plan contemplates the cutting down of the East Capitol Park from the building, in order to leave the Capitol on a promintor, and the filling of New-Jersey and Delaware avenues, North Capitol, and other streets north of the Capitol, and obliterating the hollow now existing at the Baltimore Depot and along the line of that road for several squares. This will compel that Company to raise its track, so that it will not interfere with the approaches to the Capitol. The plan further contemplates the cutting and filling of New-Jersey avenue south of the Capitol. This plan was approved by the Committee today, and in accordance therewith the east Capitol Park will be cut down as recommended, so that the drainage, instead of being upon the Capitol as now, will be from the building toward First-street, East. In cutting down the East Capitol Park many of the trees will be taken out of it, especially those of rough appearance and rapid growth. Valuable trees will be lowered with the Park. The Committee also recommended the gradual abolition of the cotton, poplar, sycamore and other coarse trees now in the Western Park, which grievously injure by their growth the growth of valuable trees there, as the object of trees in that park is merely to obscure the terraces on the west front. When the poplars and sycamores were planted there years ago it was on account of their quick growth, and it was intended then that they should only remain until the more valuable trees and those of slower growth should be advanced. It is the desire to fill the Capitol grounds with shrubbery and smaller trees, something on the plan of Lafayette Square, and to do this the larger and coarser trees are to be gradually removed. The work, however, extensive, will be begun immediately but it will probably take two or three years to finish all the work provided for in the plans.

EXAMINATION INTO QUARANTINE REGULATIONS.

Under the provisions of a recent act of Congress providing for a thorough inspection of the Quarantines on the Atlantic and Gulf Coast, Assistant Surgeon HARVEY E. BROWN, United States Army, has been detailed by the War Department to visit each port liable to incursions of yellow fever, and to confer with the sanitary officer, and to ascertain all information possible, so as to make a detailed report to the Surgeon-General before the next meeting of Congress, looking toward the establishment of an uniform system of quarantine throughout the United States, under the direction of the General Government.

THE REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL COMMITTEE.

The Union Republican Congressional Committee met today, and Senator WILSON tendered his resignation as a member of the Committee. He was requested to name his successor and report to a future meeting. A resident Executive Committee was appointed consisting of Senator Harlan, Assistant Secretary Cowen, Gov. Cooke, Postmaster Edmunds and Frederick Douglass. Delegates from various portions of the country now in Washington, were before the Committee, and stated the political prospects in their several locations.

DR. HOUARD'S CASE.

Our Government is in daily expectation of receiving information of the release of Dr. HOUARD. It has made no imperative demand, as has been stated, to that end, but long ago instructed our representative at Madrid to neglect no occasion to urge in firm but respectful language his release.

The Suspected Steamer Fannie.

From the Baltimore American, June 11.

On Thursday last, 6th inst., the steamer Fannie, Capt. ERNO, late of the Savannah line, cleared from this port for Turk's Island, with 200 tons coal, shipped by and consigned to the master. The steamer was recently bought by the former owner of the notorious steam-ship Horsa, which was no longer available for filibustering purposes, having been released by the authorities only on parole never to attempt any further violation of international law. The crew of the Horsa were shipped upon the Fannie, and the circumstances were so suspicious that the attention of the Custom-house officers had to be thoroughly searched. Nothing irregular was found on board, and after detaining the vessel as long as possible for the satisfaction of the Spanish Minister, the Collector allowed her to proceed to sea. But in order to render it impossible that arms or munitions of war should be transferred to her from another vessel in United States waters, she was escorted by the revenue steamer Northerner beyond the point at which such communication could take place. The officer in command of the Northerner informs the Collector by telegraph that he has carried out his instructions and left the Fannie at 11 o'clock at night, seventy-five miles north-east of Cape Henry, and thirty-five miles from the nearest land. Up to that time no communication was had with the shore or any other vessel. The Fannie is an ocean propeller of 87 tons, and is notoriously one of the slowest steamers sailing from Baltimore. The vessel was built for blockade-running purposes, but did not meet the expectations of her owners. The owner of the Horsa purchased her from Messrs. BRANDT & CO. The Horsa, sent to Barcelona to watch her, was no doubt employed by the Spanish authorities, and not by the revenue officers.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES, THURSDAY, JUNE 13, 1872.

NOTES FROM THE PEOPLE.

The Tribune and the Use of Tobacco.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In today's Tribune appears an article upon tobacco, which is only one of many that any of the old admirers of HORACE GREELEY will remember. The writer (regardless of a man writing articles against the use of tobacco in any and every form, and now entertaining a partnership with an habitual chewer of it, such as Hon. WM. M. TWEED) [illegible] Hearst and machinery for the mixing of cider and tobacco prepared for use, strikes me, as old and ardent admirer of HORACE, as being sufficient to damn him forever as a Apyocrisa. Has he offered any excuse for such [illegible] consistency?

Nuisances on Street-Cars.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Will you permit one who has read with satisfaction your several articles on the abuses and nuisances of the street-car system, to suggest in possible amendment? The laws or regulations now have sided direct they certain bundles, &c., should be carried on the front platform. Now, as in Summer, the door and front window are usually open, the draught in this way created drives inevitably any effluvium, as tobacco, directly through the car. Besides, tobacco smokers should both be kept upon the rear platform.

A DAILY SUFFERER BY BOTH EVILS.

A Question for Commodore Vanderbilt.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I have noticed lately that some of the Hudson River trains have discontinued stopping at the Harlem River Bridge, and, in fact, scarcely slack their speed. Now, can you inform me whether there has been any change in the law requiring all trains to come to a full stop before crossing a draw-bridge, or does VANDERBILT imagine he holds such a prominent position in the railroad world that he can take the law in his own hands, and do as he pleases? At this point of the river, the draw is obliged to be opened every few minutes for the numerous trips of the excursion boats to High Bridge, and, therefore, makes it very dangerous to cross at the rate of speed I have seen without stopping. More North River Ferries Needed.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

It has long been felt by many of those traveling on the Central Railroad of New-Jersey that they should have facilities afforded them of reaching the upper part of the City directly by a ferry. This City is growing rapidly in a northerly direction, as everybody knows, and the only ferry which this company possesses is situated almost at the extreme southerly end of the island—the farthest south of any ferry to New-Jersey. It is somewhat remarkable that this condition of affairs should have existed so long, as the New-Jersey Central has always had the reputation of being a live and enterprising road. I understand, it is about soon to be made with the Morris and Essex Division of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad is completed, by which the joint companies will forward passengers over the Newark and Great York Railroad to Community Ferry. It is to be hoped that this ferry will be established, in the meantime, in the best way than by using the Christopher-street Ferry, although one still further north would, undoubtedly, be far more desirable.

NEW-YORK, Tuesday, June 11, 1872.

Private Dalzell for Grant.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

For some years past I have been pressing the claims of the private soldiers upon the attention of the country through the papers of both political parties, with no other end in view than to advance the interests of the private soldiers in the matters of pension, bounty, land warrants and offices. I have every week for years addressed letters to leading papers. With this object before me, and to influence the action of Congress, I initiated a call for a Soldiers' National Convention. In my zeal I may sometimes have laid blame where it least belonged. And, if as a Republican, I have done the Republican Party any harm, it has been unintentional, and I shall make haste to remedy the evil so far as I can. Hence this letter to the leading Republican paper of the nation. And now that our old leader, Gen. GRANT is re-nominated, I beg space in your columns to entreat my comrades to stand by him as of old, a thing which I feel sure they have already resolved to do. No man knows better than I how the rank and file complain of the hardships of Congress in equalizing our bounties, paying back pensions, &c. But the Republican Party has done for us soldiers all that has been done, and Gen. GRANT has approved every measure passed by Congress for our benefit. The Democratic Party opposes every measure intended to benefit us. Our only hope is in the continued ascendancy of Republican ascendency. No other party has done, or will do, anything for us. If any now get pensions, it are have bounties or lands, the Republican Party has given them, and not the Democratic Party. That party is our enemy, and has been ever since the war. Let us then as a man vote for Gen. GRANT and the Republican Party.

Yours truly, PRIVATE DALZELL.

Letter from a Mechanic.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Can it be possible that any American-born workman are to be found among the present strikers? It appears to me that any one born in this country, and who has sucked in with his mother's milk the real American idea of liberty and equality, would scout the idea that there could possibly arise among us a class who should presume to dictate to others how many hours they should work, and how much pay they should claim for it. It is enough to make the fathers of our country, who laid down their lives and their fortunes to free their fellow-men from the thraldom of privileged classes, turn in their graves when bands of European demagogues and Internationals inundate our country and dare to dictate to free American mechanics. Imagine, imagining a privileged class on free American soil. I for one am not inclined to submit to it, and I hereby warn all concerned of two things of which they appear ignorant—first, that this is a free country, and second, that I for one will never submit to the dictation of any privileged class. Let them see how, if they can, how much I am to work to gain an honest livelihood for myself, and a support for my wife and children. Life to me would be worthless under such conditions, and I would rather lay it down at once, defending my rights, than to be dictated to by any would-be aristocrats. If any money I may earn is willing to work only eight hours, or four, or none at all, he is at perfect liberty to do so for all I care; but as for me, I have a real American ambition to be a rich man, and ride in my carriage, and I am going to do it, God willing. If I have to work sixteen hours a day to accomplish it. Where would the rich men of our land have been if they had allowed themselves to be bullied and bulldragged by any of their fellow-citizens, and had toiled only eight hours a day? In the gutter or the poor-house I opine. Yours, &c.,

A FREE MECHANIC.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, June 12, 1872.

Greeley in Chautauqua.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

A short communication signed G. W. P., in the TIMES, a few days since, gave the New-York Sun an opportunity to publish a letter written by one ORANGE H. STEVENS, highly abusive of two prominent and influential citizens of this county, and as destitute of decency and truth as the writer themselves is of reputable character and good sense. Neither of these gentlemen needs any indorsements from Mr. Hon. GEO. W. PATTERSON is well and widely known as a man of wealth and ability, whose heart and hand are ever prompt to respond liberally to all calls of private beneficence and all measures for the promotion of the public good.

Notwithstanding the assertion of STEVENS that he has no influence, he has been often elected to honorable and responsible positions, and has the proud satisfaction of being able to say that he never solicited a nomination to office, and was never defeated when nominated. His only offence now is, that he is unable to forget that STEVENS formerly advised the North to let the rebels disembowel our country, and, like all true patriots, is now unwilling to see U. S. GRANT and the party that helped GRANT to save the country defeated by any unholy combination of Bogus Democrats and disaffected Republicans.

Few men have been the objects of more political throwing than Hon. W. H. STEVENS, the present able representative in Congress, none of which, however, has left a stain upon his political and personal integrity. He was elected by the present Congress in spite of a formidable coalition of Democrats and Republicans bolters, which cod never again be made so powerfully successful. His conceded ability and the honorable position he has achieved in Congress by close attention to his legislative duties, have silenced many of his enemies, and if he consents to a renomination he will very surely be re-elected by something like an old-fashioned Republican majority.

In his communication to the Sun ORANGE H. STEVENS, (who is well, but not favorably, known in limited portions of this county and western Pennsylvania,) with characteristic impudence assumed that G. W. P. meant GEO. W. PATTERSON. With equal consistency he might have assumed that those initials meant GEO. W. PALMER, a former resident politician of Chautauqua County, and on that assumption have assailed that veteran General for his supposed abandonment of those "liberal principles" which are leading him directly into the camp of his lifelong political enemies.

[illegible] the correspondents of the Sun, the readers of that journal will not be overwhelmed with a very large stock of remarkably rational nonsense. W. W. R.

Big Boys and Little Ones.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

There has been a great deal said in your paper of the wrongs of men whose minds have been entered, and of intermediates who are obliged to stand in the rear; but, to my knowledge, there has never been a complaint of the petty tyranny exercised by older boys (boys of eleven and twelve) toward the youngest ones. It may seem a trifling thing to us—though we are but children of a larger growth—that little boy should extend his mother's cookies on a ball and have it stolen; but it is a hard thing for the child. THIRTY-FIFTH-STREET.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

Important Report of the Sanitary Committee—Insanitary Record.

At a meeting of the Board of Health yesterday, President BOSWORTH in the chair, the attorney was ordered to commence suits against several butchers, who persist in slaughtering in violation of the order of the Board. He stated that several judgments have already been obtained against a number of these persons, and the complaints have been sent before the Grand Jury for their action.

The City Sanitary Inspector was ordered to inspect all wooden slaughter-houses, and make a full report to the Board, with a recommendation in each case.

A complaint was received in regard to the bad condition of Christie street, between Houston and Stanton streets.

Commissioner GROSS offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Whereas, Cases of hydrophobia in this City and neighborhood have lately increased to an alarming extent, and

Whereas, It is observable that the number of cases and unexamined dogs is the rule rather than the exception; therefore

Resolved, That the Board of Police be urgently requested to have sections 72 and 73 of the Code of Ordinances relating to the keeping of dogs vigorously enforced.

The section referred to says that no person shall take a dog into the street or public place, between the 15th day of June and the 15th day of September, unless properly muzzled. That every animal which is mad or has the hydrophobia shall be killed; and that the carcass of any animal that died of such disease shall be buried not less than three feet under ground, at some place not within 1,000 feet of any residence.

The Sanitary Committee presented the following report:

At a meeting of the Sanitary Committee, Commissioner GROSS, chairman, held at the office of the Board of Health, on the 10th inst., present, Messrs. GROSS and BLACK, the following report was adopted:

The nuisance in the Tenth Ward, in the district bounded by North River, between Thirty-seventh and Forty-second streets, which was adopted at the report of the Committee:

The nuisance in the Tenth Ward, in the district between Thirty-seventh and Forty-second streets, may well be regarded as the nuisance district of New-York. It would be difficult to designate which of the many nuisances is the worst. Of all kinds of business, the larger collection of dilapidated, worthless structures. These are on these five-acre-one blocks the following kinds of business: 1. Manure manufactories. 2. Sheds for horses, 3. Sheds for party, for offal and dead animals. 4. Boneboiling depots. 4. Three fat-melting establishments. 5. Two soap manufactories. 6. Sheds for several thousand cattle. 7. Yards for 10,000 head of horses for cattle. 8. Six hog-slaughtering establishments. 10. Six hard-rendering establishments. 11. Asphalt pavement works. 12. Metropolitan Gas-works. 13. Rat-scenting and killing establishments. 14. Rat-killing establishments. 15. Tripe curing. 16. Wool-pulling. 17. Two tanneries. 18. Several stables for horses. 19. Several stables for cows. The streets in this district all need paving with the best of pavement of material. [illegible]

From the foregoing report it is apparent that this section of the City is in a most unsanitary and insanitary condition. The kinds of business carried on here are nearly all more or less offensive in themselves, even when properly conducted, but when carried on by careless and irresponsible persons become gross nuisances. The handling of manure involves a most intolerable nuisance to people living within several blocks. Fat-melting will never be so conducted by these establishments as not to be a source of offense. The buildings are old and dilapidated, the machinery is imperfect, and the business is generally conducted in that reckless, indifferent manner characteristic of small operators.

The slaughtering business at these establishments has become a great nuisance. The number of several thousand hogs constantly, is a great and growing sanitary evil which must sooner or later be abated. The stench arising from these yards especially when provoked without rain, is at all times intolerable. The slaughtering is imperfectly done, and but little regard is paid to cleanliness. This business should be done beyond the City limits, or in an abattoir constructed so as to prevent all nuisance.

The Committee recommend the adoption of the following resolutions, which embody such improvements as are regarded immediately necessary and practicable:

Resolved, That the City Sanitary Inspector be and is hereby directed to detail an inspector to the Sanitary Dock, foot of Thirty-ninth-street and North River, and the inspector, who is to be under the direction of the City Sanitary Inspector, to enforce the ordinances of the Board.

Resolved, That the New-York Rendering Company be and are hereby notified to discontinue the process of rendering at the dock, foot of Thirty-eighth-street and North River, on and after the 25th inst.

Resolved, That the permits heretofore granted to DORAHUS & CO., GAHELS & MONIEN, and TONNY & BOGERT, to render tallow or fat be and are hereby revoked.

Resolved, That the wooden sheds now occupied by GAHELS & MONIEN, as "casing works" on the south side of Twelfth-street, be thoroughly cleansed, and limewashed, and not again occupied for this business.

Resolved, That the wooden sheds and all structures used for carting and boiling fat, be thoroughly cleansed, all refuse removed, and the walls, partitions and wood-work generally be limewashed, and before the floors be daily cleaned or disinfected with carbolic acid, and that the City Sanitary Inspector be directed to have the proper complaints made in each case for orders of the Board.

Resolved, That the cattle yards be cleansed, and not again used for penning.

Resolved, That the Department of Docks be respectfully requested to dredge, or cause to be dredged, all the slips between Thirty-seventh and Forty-third streets, as a sanitary measure.

Resolved, That the following be adopted as an additional ordinance of the Sanitary Code:

"No offal or butchers' refuse shall be conveyed through any street or Avenue of the City of New-York, in violation of Ordinance of 10 o'clock A. M. to P. M., and that no offal or refuse shall be conveyed at any time unless the same be in tight boxes, barrels or vessels from which no odor shall escape."

The report was received and the resolutions were unanimously adopted.

Dr. CHAS. P. RUSSELL, Registrar of Records, reports as follows: During the past week there were registered 540 deaths, being 26 less than for the previous week, and 42 more than for the corresponding period of 1871. Epzootic disease occasioned 107 deaths; convulsions, 112; local, 187; developmental, 32, and violent causes, 22. The total cases of small-pox were 39 in number, corresponding with their number in the previous week. As did also the 12 deaths from measles. The mortality of scarlatina declined from 26 to 16; of diphtheria and croup, from 15 to 10; of whooping cough, from 7 to 3, and of typhoid fever, from 7 to 4. There were 5 deaths by typhus fever, 1 by remittent fever, 1 by puerperal fever, 1 by intermittent fever, 1 by erysipelas, 1 by [illegible]. Deaths were due to cerebro-spinal meningitis, against 11 in the previous week; 4 deaths were caused by erysipelas. The mortality of phthisis pulmonalis decreased from 56 to 70, and that of local tuberculous affections increased from 26 to 27. Of these latter, 6 were due to pulmonary, against 24 in the previous week. Of the 540 deaths there occurred by Coroners, and 135 took place in hospitals and institutions. The following was the principal meteorological features of the week, as recorded for this Department: Mean temperature, 67.1; highest temperature, 86; minimum temperature, 47; mean barometer, 29.97, being a little less than for the corresponding period during the past ten years. Mean reading of barometer, 29.97; mean degree of humidity, 68; mean velocity of wind, 8.

The Board then adjourned and went into secret session, during which they effected a reduction of salaries of the employees of the Board, as follows: Counsel reduced from $3,000 to $2,000; City Sanitary Inspector and the Secretary reduced from $3,000 to $2,000 each; Public Inspectors, from $2,500 to $2,200, and all the clerks, from $1,800 to $1,600 each.

The Official Blood-Lock in Elizabeth, N. J.—Levying on the City Property.

Yesterday the threatened sale of property belonging to the City of Elizabeth, N. J., was commenced by the Sheriff of Union County to satisfy a claim of city creditors for $1,600. This sale is the result of the difficulty between the Mayor and Common Council about the appointment of a Controller. The Mayor has nominated several persons for the office, under the new law passed last Winter, but none have been acceptable to the Common Council, and they have refused to confirm the nominations. The Mayor, on the other hand, has declined to nominate men whom Councilmen have expressed a willingness to accept. This has left the office vacant, and the city's business, consequently, cannot be carried on. Property to the value of $7,000 has been levied on to satisfy this claim of $1,600. Yesterday drain-pipe, valued at $2,200, was sold in quantities, bringing, per foot, about one-third or one-fourth of its original cost, and realizing to the officers only about $700. The sale will, therefore, be continued, and the furniture of the Common Council Chamber will be next sold.

FEMALE SHOPLIFTERS ARRESTED.

Thieves—The Children's Aid Society—Received by Them.

For some months past complaints have been constantly made by wholesale clothing merchants that they had been swindled by two women, who obtained goods from them to make up, and never returned the property. As the women thieves were supposed to live in the Seventh Ward, the case was placed in the hands of the detectives of the Seventh Precinct. In the course of their investigations they learned that two women, answering the description furnished them, had rented a house in Hudson-street, which they had furnished, and having lost three weeks ago the furniture, the officers went to the house, but were too late, as the women had removed to other lodgings the day previous. Last week some information received, the detectives proceeded to Mulberry-street, and arrested Catherine Conway, alias Kate Jones, in the act of selling a quantity of stolen goods to a second-hand clothing dealer. Some time ago one of the stolen goods was found in the house of Hollender, &c. The prisoners were brought to the Station-house and searched. The officers found several railway tickets for St. Louis, procured through the Chillicothe and Sidney, where the superintendent, Mr. BEACH, they had deceived by a false story. The officers never found two Young girls, Alice and Hannah Wannamaker, who had been employed by the women to make up the cut cloth obtained by them. They owed the girls six cents, which, of course, they did not pay. The sewing machine, a Singer's machine, a Grover & WILLCOX & Gibbs valued at $75, and a WILLCOX & Gibbs valued at $50, which the adroit thieves had procured on hire. When the work was finished they sold the machines for $10 each. When arrested SARAH WILSON had in her possession a letter which read as follows:

Mr. GREEN—As you will see I am sorry to say money for insurance, and I will pay you the rest of the money on Friday. Please send the rest of the goods with the bearer. Yours, &c.

When the prisoners were arraigned at Essex Market Court before Justice KOCH, yesterday, complaints were made against them by the swindled merchants. And they were held for trial. The prisoners [illegible] under the cognomen of Mrs. LOUISA LON, alias SOUR, alias Mrs. TRAFHAGEN, Hyman & Co., No. 30 Bowery, Gee-worth, alias Sprung, No. 41 Franklin-street, Ad-wans, and BARNABY KIELER, No. 154 Church-street, New-York. Numerous other complaints will most likely be made against these pleasant of the fair sex, as the prisoners were in the habit of going to ship them to their husbands, in St. Louis, where they were sold. A number of pawn tickets representing stolen property were found in their possession when arrested by the officers.

HAGERTY.

Why He Remained in the County Court-House—Chamberlain Palmer's Sixth Sensation.

A reporter called yesterday upon City Chamberlain PALMER in relation to the presence of HAGERTY, the indicted rowdies that is in the County Court-house. Mr. PALMER then made the following statement:

When I assumed the duties of this office I sent an officer immediately to HAGERTY, who, as he stated, is the Tombs, with his discharge, and in order that HAGERTY's family should vacate the apartments occupied by them in the building. Not long after I found his family had not removed, and I again sent the officer to HAGERTY. HAGERTY, I understand, was holding under stress of information against him, and was, therefore, confined to bail. He came to me, and said: "I will move, but I must take the furniture in the apartments with me." I in answer said he was wrongly told and that the furniture belonged to the City. I called on the Comptroller and asked him if there was no law, if he had a right to seize the property of the City. The Comptroller's reply was that he had no power. Subsequently, however, he applied to the Corporation Counsel for his assistance, and he replied that nothing could be done without the action of the Board of Supervisors. I, in my succession Mr. CHARLES DONOHUE, conferred with the Board of Supervisors. That is all I could do in the matter. I have the power to appoint, but it appears, not the power to remove."

Mr. GREEN did send a communication to the Board of Supervisors under date June 1 inst., in which he says:

"I would respectfully suggest that the Board of Supervisors have power to remove, and that they should appoint some discreet person as janitor of the building, &c."

The communication was referred to the Committee on Civil Courts, to report at the next meeting, on June 17. This, then, is now the matter stands at present: HAGERTY holds possession, but suggests his willingness to quit if he is allowed to take the furniture with him. PALMER is willing to allow HAGERTY around. The right to the furniture is not determined yet; it is said the Corporation Counsel has it in hand. Mr. RICHARD FLANNIGAN, who has been appointed by Chamberlain PALMER to succeed HAGERTY, is active janitor, but does not reside in the building. Chamberlain PALMER, it is said, has the idea of bringing his family to live there. He thinks one room would suit him, his residence to be as at present. The other rooms now designated as janitor's apartments might be used as Court-rooms or offices.

Payments by the Controller.

Controller GREEN made the following payments yesterday: Department of Public Instruction, $255,000; Department of Public Works—laborers on small pipes, and pavers, to June 1, 1872, $6,900; engineers and firemen, January and February, 1872, $1,000; laborers, &c., on street repairing and repaving, two weeks, to June 1, 1872, $7,311 50. Total payments, $270,180 50.

The laborers on big pipes have been paid to June 1.

Awards of City Stocks by the Controller.

The following are the awards of stocks made by Controller GREEN from the bids opened on the 11th inst.:

Harlem for Grant and Wilson—An Enthusiastic Meeting—Resolutions Adopted.

A much larger and more enthusiastic assemblage than that of the recent Tammany Republican gathering in the same neighborhood, attended the regular meeting of the Twenty-first Assembly District Republican meeting, at the head-quarters, No. 1,213 Third-avenue, on Tuesday evening. Eloquent speeches, filled with convincing arguments in favor of the nomination of the Philadelphia Convention, were made by Wm. HAYS, Jr., President of the Association, and Messrs. H. U. Robinson, Henry R. Smith, D. B. Mellish, James Green, Dr. Gregory, Aldermen Hall and others.

About fifty new members were admitted to the Association, among them Messrs. Wm. H. DRAPER, ANTHONY ABBATINE, and EBENEZER BROWN, late of the Greeley General Committee.

Arrangements are in progress by this Association to call an out-of-door mass-meeting of Harlem Republicans to ratify the nomination of GRANT and WILSON for the Presidency.

The following preamble and resolutions were introduced by Col. ABBATINE, P. EPCHUM, seconded by HENRY G. DRAPER, Esq., and upon being put to a vote by the President, were declared accepted amid the most vociferous applause:

Whereas, A convention of the people held at Philadelphia has with unusual unanimity and enthusiasm nominated for a second Presidential term one who, by his great and unselfish labors, has proved himself, first in war and first in peace, is likely to be forever equal place in the affections of his countrymen; and

Whereas, It has named for the second place on the ticket, the Hibernian Senator, who has endeared himself by his long service to the working men of the land, the freedmen of the South and every loyal, liberty-loving citizen of the nation; and

Whereas, Its nomination has been so well begun by the adoption of a platform of principles which, in unmistakable sound, are bold, wise and patriotic, true to the interests of every class, color and condition of our citizens, the finishing to the work, we pray, may be carried out.

Resolved, That we hail the nominations made in Philadelphia with unmingled satisfaction and pride;

WEDNESDAY, June 12—P. M.

The whole amount of United States 5-20 Bonds offered to the Sinking Fund today was $521,000, and of this sum only $47,500 could be accepted as within the par of Gold. The advertisement of the Treasury Department was for $3,000,000, and the result is the purchase of less than 2½ per cent. of the amount. In the open market the Public Funds left off steady, prices, as a rule, being above the par of Gold (the accrued interest being taken into the account), on the 5-20s.

The sales of Gold were at 114⅝@114⅞ cent. The market was barely steady and the recent speculators for a rise in the market have been disappointed as well in the strength of the market as in the Export demand, upon which they calculated largely through the month of June, as in the month of May. The sudden falling off in the shipments this week seems to be conclusive of a much lighter outward movement this month than in May.

After the sailing of the European steamers early in the forenoon, there was not much done in Foreign Bills, although another mail is made up for the steamer sailing to-morrow—the Hamburg-American packet. The 60 days' rates on London are 109½@109⅞ cent.

Money is in free supply, both at Bank and on the Street, at 6@7 ⅌ cent., and 5 ⅌ cent. is accepted by a good many lenders on call loan where better rates are not practicable. The offerings are larger at present than the demands of the Stock Exchange, owing to the comparative dullness of speculation.

A fall of 5 ⅌ cent. on Erie Stock was the sensation on the Stock Exchange today. The cause of decline came over the Cable from London, where a "crisis" is reported among the Erie speculators in settling their differences for the Half Monthly "account." The Sterling price fell to 42 ⅌ cent., which is equivalent to about 58@59 ⅌ cent. our Currency. The sales here accordingly fell to 59@58½@58¾ ⅌ cent., but subsequently returned to 59⅞@59¾ ⅌ cent. There was no very marked eagerness to push out contracts in the Stock, at the sudden decline, as the amount held on this side bears so small a proportion to the whole Common Capital of 780,000 Shares. The registered transactions of the day were about 25,000 Shares.

The General Railway list of the Exchange was dull, and advantage was taken of the Erie affair by the bearish interest in the market to sell North-west, Union Pacific, New-York Central, Lake Shore, &c., ½@1 ⅌ cent. lower than the best sales of yesterday, and the same feeling extended to Pacific Mail. The Southern State Bonds were firmer on Tennessees, sales as high as 73½ ⅌ cent. The Pacific First Mortgages were something less firm than yesterday.

After the Second Board of the Exchange the following quotations were made in the Hall of the Exchange, as compared with Tuesday Afternoon.

During the recent session of Congress the Pacific Railroad Committee of the House of Representatives, on the motion of Hon. N. P. BANKS, of Massachusetts, were instructed to inquire into and report on the progress of the Northern Pacific Road, to which an imperial grant of sixty million acres of the Public Domain has been made. The report of the Committee is of the most satisfactory character, and highly creditable to the enterprise and perfect good faith of the Company. The Committee say that the "work throughout is shown to be of the best quality. The iron is all of American manufacture from American ores. There will be in operation at the end of this year 517 miles of the main road. Surveys for the best line across the continent have been made. In addition to that now completed, there is under construction and preparing for contracts east and west of the Rocky Mountains, 1,031 miles of road." The company have examined, platted and classified of its lands in Minnesota and in Washington Territory, 1,978,000 acres; $6,244,000 of stock has been issued, representing 49,416 shares, held by 174 different share-owners, whose names are given. The Committee also find that the Northern Pacific Railroad Company offers to its bondholders several elements of security, and they go on to recite these, concluding by the statement that recent thorough and careful surveyings have left no room for doubt that the Company's lands—agricultural, grazing, mineral and timber—are of excellent average quality, and with the road built through them, they will possess a cash value which will surely provide for the payment of the bonds for which they are now mortgaged.

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

The St. Joseph and Denver City Railroad Company's 1st MORTGAGE BONDS are being absorbed by an increasing demand for them.

Secured as they are by a first mortgage on the road, land grant, franchise, and equipments, combined in one mortgage, they command at once a ready market.

A liberal sinking fund provided in the mortgage deed must advance the price upon the closing of the loan. Principal and interest payable in GOLD. Interest at eight ⅌ cent. per annum. Payable semi-annually, free of tax. Principal in thirty years. Denominations, $1,000, $500 and $100. Coupons or Registered.

Price 97½ and accrued interest, in currency, from Feb. 15, 1872.

Maps, circulars, documents, and information furnished by Trustees, Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, of New-York.

Can now be had through the principal banks and bankers throughout the country, and from the undersigned, who unhesitatingly recommend them. TANNER & CO., Bankers, No. 11 Wall-st., New-York.

THE SEVEN PER CENT. GOLD LAND GRANT BONDS of the WEST WISCONSIN RAILWAY, now completed, for sale at 81½ and accrued interest, in currency, by WHITE, MORRIS & CO., No. 15 Wall-st., and GWYNNE, JOHNSON & DAY, No. 13 Wall-st.

THE BURLINGTON, CEDAR RAPIDS AND MINNESOTA RAILWAY FIRST MORTGAGE 7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS.

The entire loan issued against the main line of this road having been sold, we now offer a small mortgage of $200,000 against the Milwaukee Division of the road. These bonds are secured in precisely the same manner as the old issue, and are entitled to equal confidence.

Price, for the present, 90 and interest in currency.

THE BROKERS' TAX.

Repeal of the Tax on Borrowed Capital—The Text of the Amendments.

The announcement made yesterday that the tax on borrowed capital, so much complained of by stock and gold brokers and bankers, had been repealed by Congress, was correct. The bill was passed among many others that were put through Congress, at the end of the session. The bill is to go into effect July 1, and although it is very brief, the few words that it is confined to among the original act authorizing the tax so as to put a very different interpretation on the law

The New-York Times,

DAILY, WEEKLY AND SEMI-WEEKLY.

This journal is now thoroughly identified with the highest political morality of the hour—uncompromising warfare against all forms of corruption, whether in national or local government. For years past the TIMES has been exposing the demoralizing influence of self-interested politicians, and its recent warfare upon the Tammany Democrats has been greeted with universal approval. It has adhered to the pledge given in its original prospectus, more than twenty years ago, that the public should be truly represented, and their interests faithfully guarded through its columns. Its record has been pure and honorable, and the highest aim of its proprietors is to render it more and more worthy of its past history, and of the confidence which the public reposes in it. Two out of three of the original proprietors still direct its policy, and guide it on all public questions. They pledge that the TIMES shall continue to keep clear of all narrow and unworthy influences and cliques, and aim to represent the great body of the people, as distinguished from personal factions. It occupies a perfectly independent position, and is free to speak the truth on all subjects and about all men. Its greatly increased circulation throughout the country adds to its power and influence. It will continue to be a faithful exponent of Republican principles, recognizing the claims of American industry in adjusting the sources of revenue; and it will advocate with untiring energy every cause which tends to further the welfare of the people.

CAMPAIGN EDITION.

During the ensuing Presidential Canvass, we shall publish a SPECIAL WEEKLY EDITION for the convenience of those who desire the latest and most trustworthy political intelligence.

The CAMPAIGN EDITION of the NEW-YORK TIMES will be furnished to mail subscribers, for six months, for the sum of FIFTY CENTS. All copies sent to the same Post-office to be mailed to one address.

A very full summary of news, and many general articles of great interest, are published in the Semi-weekly edition; and in the Weekly edition there is an unabridged report of the proceedings at the Farmers' Club, an excellent summary of political information, and a great variety of matter suitable for family reading.

The NEW-YORK TIMES is pre-eminently a family paper, all objectionable advertisements being rigidly excluded; and it has a constantly increasing circulation among the most respectable classes of the community.

☞ The NEW-YORK TIMES has opened a branch office in Brooklyn at No. 111 Fulton-st., junction of Fulton and Main, where advertisements will be received until 5 P. M.

☞ Throughout the Presidential canvass, we shall publish fuller reports of meetings and conventions in each State than any other New-York journal. Very full dispatches will be forwarded by telegraph, supplemented by careful letters. Our desire is to place before the public the latest and most trustworthy information, and we have made ample arrangements for that purpose.

The Conventions of the Democratic Party so far held have shown a strong feeling in favor of the indorsement of Mr. GREELEY at Baltimore. It is to be noted, however, that the tone of the expressions made by the Conventions is very dubious. New-York only accepted the platform, Pennsylvania did not go even so far as that. South Carolina refused to instruct its delegates. Indiana quotes Mr. GREELEY's letter in the platform, and gives many fine words to Cincinnati, but dares not squarely accept the candidates. In nearly all the States, moreover, there are signs that the Democratic movement for GREELEY is made the consideration for Liberal Republican support of State nominees. It is the bird in the hand for which the wire-pullers are willing to promise Mr. GREELEY any number of birds in the bush. As far as Republicans are concerned, they watch this process of bargain and sale with indifference. The Democracy is going to the wall, any way, in the Presidential campaign. If by taking Mr. GREELEY as a leader, they can gain anything for their local tickets, the Republicans do not much care. The Democracy is [illegible] in any case, a thorough weeding from the Republican ranks of a greedy and treacherous crew of office-seekers.

In a special telegram to the TIMES, from London, the statement is made, on the most trustworthy authority, that the English Cabinet confidently expects that the requested adjournment of the Geneva Board will be conceded. For centre comes a statement from Washington to the effect that our Government has resolved to resist any such demand. The only comfort that can be extracted from the present state of distracting uncertainty about the fate of the Treaty is to be found in the fact that so far as the proceedings at Geneva are concerned, the suspense will soon be over.

A few samples of the numerous crimes which are every week committed with impunity, in this City, will be found in another column. Recent instances of Police inefficiency have aroused popular indignation to such a point, that many peaceable citizens are found advocating the desperate recourse to violent methods for the repression of violence. Strongly impressed, as every citizen must be, with the dangers of New-York streets after nightfall, it is pretty obvious that these would be still further increased were the habit of carrying a pocket-pistol to become the recognized and universal defense against assault. Nothing is so much to be avoided as panic in a matter like this, since the vague apprehension of attack from everybody could only result in the sacrifice of some innocent lives, without in the slightest degree repressing the roughs. At the same time, if our Police system cannot recover from the practical break-down it has suffered in certain districts, it is tolerably clear that the public safety will demand the substitution of some better organized means of protection.

The Farmers and the Presidency.

There are but two alternatives to the choice of Gen. GRANT as President; either Mr. GREELEY, or some consistent and well-known Democrat. It is possible that the choice of the nation will have to be made between the great General and the flighty editor as their chosen leader; and it is also possible that there will be a "straight" Democratic nomination at Baltimore, and, therefore, three tickets in the field.

The whole nation knows Mr. GREELEY thoroughly. His life has been under an intense magnifying light during the past twenty years. There are probably few faults or weaknesses in his character which are not thoroughly familiar to the masses of the people. It is this thorough popular understanding of Mr. GREELEY's mind and character which will constitute his especial weakness in his struggle for the great office. The people know him. The farmers—who decide our elections—have a certain personal interest in him, from having read his journal so long, or listened to his rural "lectures," or laughed over his agricultural follies. Great numbers of them still hold him to be an honest man. They respect him, too, as a member of the working classes, who has raised himself to a conspicuous position. But, beyond this, they would not go. Our farmers are, peculiarly, a "common-sense" class of men. They have a great respect for solid judgment. They do not like wild theories and erratic movements. They are conservative. They would be the last men in the country to choose as President a man whose judgment has been fatally at fault in every great crisis that has arisen in his time—and such a man is HORACE GREELEY.

Again, the laugh of the world is something that even a backwoods man does not like. He loses his own self-respect when he thinks of his President as a boor. We are persuaded that this consideration is going to tell vastly more in the canvass than most people supposed in the outset. The flood of low comic caricatures of Mr. GREELEY, and of all the possibilities of his future career as President, which is pouring over the country, shows that this sense of the ridiculous, as connected with his Administration, has been aroused. So far as we can recall, no previous Presidential canvass has had this feature so strongly marked.

But more than this, the rural classes will dread the possible escapades and wild erratic performances of which Mr. GREELEY, if President, might be guilty. They want no more revolutions, or sudden changes of policy, or theoretic legislation. They recall him in his past career as occupying so many inconsistent positions; as wild in his youth for socialism; as anti-slavery, and then trimming and doubtful; as urging on the struggle with slavery, and then failing in courage when the first reverse came; as negotiating with rebels, apparently to leave the slaves in the lurch, and balling the great rebel leader, and then pressing the Kuklux laws; as cursing up the sins of Tammany, and entering into an alliance with it to reach the Presidential chair. All these strange inconsistencies have weakened the confidence of the masses in GREELEY's judgment, and sometimes in his principle. As an editor they like him; as President they would dread him.

On the other hand, Gen. GRANT is almost equally well known, and has the immense advantage of having been tried in the fire of the most terrible events of the century. Every one knows and respects his public qualities. The farmers and business interests have confidence in his integrity, his wisdom, and steadiness of purpose. If his Administration has not met their highest ideals, it has at least been a safe and creditable one. It will make no sudden changes in anything. As between him and Mr. GREELEY, the people will not be doubtful in their choice.

But supposing a third candidate in the field, a pure Democrat. What then? With three tickets it is of course among the possibilities that the election might be pushed into the House. And there Gen. GRANT is certain to succeed. Still, we believe there would [illegible] in the House, representing [illegible] of the States of the Union. It contains full one-third, perhaps one-half of the population. Happily for those who do not live in this district of city, they are not likely to suffer entirely from the influences which abound there. But those who will suffer are defenceless if a formidable disease should break out. They are the poorest of the inhabitants of the City. They daily violate, mainly from compulsion, the most imperative conditions of health. They live in crowded houses, they breathe bad air, they are not and cannot be personally very cleanly, and if assailed by sickness they are at once ignorant how to avert the sickness, helpless to procure competent and prompt medical attendance, and unable to co-operate intelligently with such doctors as are available. To this class an epidemic, however slight may be its issues in the general mortality tables, is a terrible foe. There can be no doubt that they have the strongest claims on the highest performance of street cleaning by the City authorities. At least they must suffer extremely during the hot months, the presence of neglected filth about their poor homes is a great aggravation of the dangers to which they are necessarily exposed. It is the plainest duty of the City Government to pay immediate attention to this subject—the more so since the wealthier wards will not look for representatives to complain of negligence if it occurs, while the river wards must depend largely on the voluntary action of the proper officials.

Imperial Folly.

Last Winter the Market Savings Bank stopped payment, and soon after went into bankruptcy. For more than six months, the chested depositors have waited for the slow disentanglement of the affairs of the bank; the sanguine souls hoping that a dividend of at least seventy per cent. would be returned to them, and the desponding depositors doubted whether they would ultimately secure even thirty per cent. A day or two ago the assignee made his report, and declared the long looked-for dividend. Thirty-one per cent. is finally announced as the proportion which each depositor is to receive from the funds which he intrusted to Messrs. VAN NAME and CONKLIN.

The failure of the bank was immediately due to the robberies perpetrated by its Secretary, CONKLIN. These frauds were known to the President. WILLIAM H. VAN NAME had probably to other of the trustees. VAN NAME confesses that no effort was made to remove CONKLIN from the trust which he was abusing, and it does not appear that any of the trustees of the bank suggested to the Secretary that the pillage of depositors was in any way objectionable. Though the fact that the bank was hopelessly ruined was known to all those connected with it, no warning was given, but deposits were received up to within a few hours of the final closing of its doors. It is the earnest opinion of the assignee, that CONKLIN was scarcely more guilty in this scandalous affair than was the President and the trustees, and he unhesitatingly asserts that the latter persons should be indicted and tried for betrayal of trust.

To those who have lost no money by the frauds of CONKLIN and VAN NAME, and can therefore look at the matter dispassionately, the story of the Market Bank affords a curious proof of the credulity of the economical classes. The world is accustomed to scoff at the confiding credulity of the typical fool, who succeeds in rapidly parting himself from his money, by listening to the seductive voice of the thimble-rig man, or of the ingenious proprietor of the "patent safe." So, too, the person who buys a share in a petroleum company, purchases prize packages, or assists at the sales of the mock auctioneer, is regarded as being conspicuously devoid of understanding, and receives from wiser men ridicule rather than pity. These persons, however, commit their follies with the hope of ultimate gain, while the depositor in the Market Bank cared little for the pittance of interest which was promised to him, and was actuated by the sole motive of placing his money where it would be safely kept.

Now even the patron of thimble-rig, or the ignorant speculator in wild-cat stock, does not seek out utterly unknown persons and beg them to take charge of his pocket-book. Yet this is precisely what the Market Bank depositors actually did. The managers of that institution were men who were unknown in respectable business circles. The President, VAN NAME, was an opener of oysters in a Nassau-street saloon up to the time when the happy thought of opening the pockets of the public, instead of the bivalves of his employers, occurred to him. His associates in the Board of Trustees were for the most part men of as little character and reputation as himself, and their names were worthless as guarantees of the trustworthiness of the bank which they mismanaged. It would be difficult to find a man who would enter an oyster-saloon and request the unknown opener of oysters to accept the care of his entire fortune. The oyster-opener changes his occupation, but not his status, when he abandons the saloon and calls himself a bank President; yet no sooner had VAN NAME abandoned the oyster-knife for the Presidential pen than thousands of men gave him their money, and flattered themselves that they were acting with a prudence that proved their superiority to the foolish spendthrift who wasted his substance in perishable pleasures. The spendthrift, however, had some little benefit from the money which he squandered. When it was gone, there still remained to him at least the memory of the horses he had driven, the remnant of the fine clothes he had worn, and the aroma of his smoked Havana cigars. On the other hand, the confiding, economical person derived from the money which he had saved, only the exasperating consciousness that he had paid for the horses, wines, and cigars of CONKLIN and VAN NAME.

It is not necessary to draw from the miserable story of the Market Bank, the moral that the spendthrift is always worse than he who puts his money in savings banks. There are banks, the trustworthiness of which are absolutely above suspicion, and the man who saves his earnings, and places them in the keeping of those institutions, acts wisely and well. It is, nevertheless, true that not even the most reckless spendthrift is more conspicuously foolish than the man who trusts a savings bank of which he knows nothing. The unfortunate victims of CONKLIN and VAN NAME, who are waiting for their poor dividend of thirty-one per cent., are today fully aware that they committed an act of immeasurable folly in giving their money into the hands of unknown men. Let us hope that others will take warning by them, and that hereafter the economical man will combine intelligence with thrift, and will confide his cash not to irresponsible openers of oysters and keepers of fish-markets, but to savings banks controlled by men whose reputation for business talent and personal probity is universally known.

Truth in a Small Compass.

Upon Gen. GRANT's accession to the Presidency a great number of those who had supported his election, with some who had not, sought office at his hands, or expected him to bestow it unasked. He was unable to gratify their aspirations. Their lamentations, mingled with the howls of the disappointed, made up a very doleful dissonance, whereof the only meaning deducible runs thus: "Gen. GRANT is found wanting—his Administration is a failure."

"Failure?" how? in what? Have we not peace and plenty in the land? Is not our flag displayed and respected on every sea? What foreign foe molests or threatens us? What fears insurrection at home, or invasion from abroad?

Yes; Gen. GRANT has failed to gratify some eager aspirations, and has thereby incurred some intense hatreds. These do not and will not fail; and his Administration will prove at least equally vital. We shall hear lamentation after lamentation over his failures from those whose wish is father to the thought; but the American people let them pass unheeded. Their strong arm bore him triumphantly through the war and into the White House, and they still uphold and sustain him; they never failed and never will.

The above very sensible remarks are from the pen of HORACE GREELEY, and were published not so very long ago in the Tribune. They are not a whit less true today than when they were written, although GREELEY himself now insists on an "office-seeker," backed up by those stanch patriots, WALDO HUTCHINS and REUBEN E. FENTON.

Communism in Georgia.

Communism has been revived again, this time in Georgia. It has not appeared, as yet, how far the philosophers of the Tribune, or their creditable ally, the editor of the Sun, are mixed up with this movement; but as all these gentry were associated with the old free goods and free-love experiments elsewhere, it is not unreasonable to conclude that they are the master spirits of the new revival near Augusta. The Constitutional, of the last-named city, describes the formation of the young society, the members of which, it seems, read the Tribune and hail from Western Massachusetts. Their principles and practice are avowedly socialistic, as taught by FOURIER and propagated by GREELEY, and their hope is that their successful example may lead to the formation of other societies, as well as the numerical increase of their own. This hope has been, not unnaturally, strengthened by the nomination of the Cincinnati Convention: since, it is argued that, whether successful or not, the prominence thus given to its chief apostle, must tend to encourage the socialist cause.

The Brigham Young of the new Colony is named JOSEPH T. CURRY, and Springfield, Mass., has had the honor to send him forth. He is invested with autocratic powers. Not only does he officiate as chief executive officer of the community, but as Judge in settling civil disputes, and as Bishop or Pope, in regulating religious ones. Moreover, still further following the example of the patriarch of Salt Lake, Mr. CURRY has control of all the property of his associates. Nominally, that property belongs to everybody collectively—to no one man more than to another. But practically it belongs to CURRY, since he can do whatever he likes with it, whereas, no one else can do anything. This is the remarkable and apparently inevitable characteristic of socialism, in its various forms, to which on material, aside from religious grounds, dissidents of the outer world feel bound to object. How far it will work in practice we must leave to the future to decide.

In the meantime, Mr. CURRY has bought a tract of land known as the Stearns place, on the Washington Road, about eleven miles from Augusta. There is a picturesque old mansion there, with a little village of surrounding cabins, and with useful and pleasant adjuncts of wood, water, and fine scenery. In the mansion, no doubt, Mr. CURRY has ensconced himself, while the cabins, as certainly, furnish homes for his followers. At first, only two or three families appeared on the spot, and their behavior was marked by much secrecy and circumspection. They held as little intercourse as possible with the "world's people," and gave out as little token as might be of their designs. In truth, part of what is now related, in print, of the community, has been gathered from some dissatisfied backsliders, or seceders, whose story is, however, confirmed by circumstantial evidence. After a time the infant colony had additions, who arrived mysteriously from the North. They brought boxes, furniture, carpets, kitchen-gear—all their household goods, in short—and clearly implied that they had "come to stay." The number marshaled under the banner of CURRY was at least fifty, by last accounts; but it was said as many more were coming in the ensuing week, and further arrivals were expected subsequently.

The nucleus of a civil and religious body is thus established in Georgia numerous enough to attract attention, and to suggest grave conjectures respecting its future. So far as the peculiar ideas and policy of the society have come to us, we gather that, apart from the community of goods, these people believe in the whole Scriptures—as interpreted by themselves; that baptism by water is superfluous, the Holy Spirit acting in its stead; that Saturday is the true Sabbath, although on Sunday nights Mr. CURRY always preaches a sermon; that TANNY WRIGHT and HORACE GREELEY are to be revered as the typical female and male representatives of Communistic doctrines; that CURRY is the great Apollo of their immediate circle, and is to have his pick, whether of chattels, or anything else desirable, that may be pertained therein. These wholesome and inspiring dogmas command rigid adherence, and those who profess them are said to be orderly, frugal, and industrious persons.

It is conceivable that action may be taken such as shall prevent Mr. CURRY from carrying his experiment to conclusive results. Possibly the State of Georgia may object to the development of a system in any sense analagous to that which is not permitted to flourish unimpeded in Utah. Be this as it may, we cannot, in the face of the foregoing and other circumstances, deny that late political events have had a tendency to encourage among us several peculiar and extreme classes of opinion and habits of life, the growth of which may or may not be for the general good of society, but the affinity of which with the politicians and thinkers represented by Mr. GREELEY is strong and inseparable.

MINOR TOPICS.

Mr. CHARLES WILLIAMS has lately attained celebrity as a sneak-thief. Having stolen a lot of laces from a shop in Grand-street, been arrested, escaped from the officer, and been recaptured, it was ordered by Superintendent KELSO that his picture should be taken for the celebrated "Rogues' Gallery." To this CHARLES, modest as regards his pretensions, no doubt, demurred. When placed in the chair, and the instrument brought to bear on his face, he fell to making the most horrible grimaces, shut his eyes, opened his mouth, and resorted to other devices not improving to his naturally prepossessing countenance. On a second attempt, the unwilling sitter kicked over the camera and knocked out one of the lenses. Finally, by dint of handcuffs, and a strap under his chin to keep his mouth shut, a picture was got of the strangling youth, the sole defect of which is that the eyes are closed. Thus the "counterfeit presentment" of CHARLES, wrapped, to appearance, in infantile slumber, now graces the wall of the Rogues' Gallery. If all the people gifted with no greater share of beauty than this ornament to society were equally averse to its reproduction, the number of hideous countenances at the doors and in the rooms of the photographers would be vastly diminished.

Mr. NAST pays his respects to Mr. SUMNER's speech in this week's Harper's. His cartoon represents the "long bow" of the Massachusetts Senator breaking in his hands, and the arrow, pointed with spite and winged with malice and hate, dropping harmless to the ground. No less true to the facts is the portrait of Gov. HOFFMAN, drawing on his kids, with the inscription: "A white glove often conceals a dirty hand."

They have been having a nice breeze of late in the Italian Chamber of Deputies. The practice of reading offensive articles from newspapers is not now confined to American and English legislative assemblies, and in such an act the disturbance originated. A Deputy, Signor ARIGHENTE, was reading a spiteful leader from Le Perseveranza, and interlarding the same with ironical comments, when suddenly Minister LANZA jumped to his feet and cried: "Your manner of discussion is dishonest and discourteous. You lie in your throat!" This gracious objurgation at once created a tempest. The "Right" cheered vociferously. The "Left" filled the air with groans and hisses. For a time it seemed as if the session would end in a riot. The Paris Press declares that the members were really on the point of springing at each other's throats. Some of the more prudent rushed to Signor BIANCHERI, the President, and begged him to put on his hat, thus adjourning the Chamber and averting further disgrace. That official wished to do so, but a practical difficulty arose—his hat was not to be found. Vainly he tried in the confusion to borrow one. The storm grew more and furious. Happily, one of the secretaries snatched a hat from some one hurrying through the lobbies. A deputy seized it, and, as the manner sometimes is in the Stock Exchange, "bonnetted" the President from behind. Instantly the agitation subsided, as if oil had been quickly poured on the angry sea of debate. Somebody turned the gas down, the deputies straggled out as best they could, and the last the correspondent who describes the scene saw in the chamber, was the honorable President vainly struggling with the hat which was blinding his eyes and crushing his nose. So decorous a tableau as this has been rarely looked upon even among those Anglo-Saxon Assemblies that the fastidious Latins so often denounce as uncivilized and brutal.

The business of puffing operatic singers is being pushed to rather offensive excess just now in London; and art will be none the worse if the Press here and there should refuse to be the vehicle of such tolerable trickery. Honor to whom honor is due by all means; but there are other people in the world besides lyric artists, and other things to think of besides their carollings, however charming they may be. No one need complain of the just recognition of merit even at considerable length, or, under spur of momentary enthusiasm, even if expressed with considerable hyperbole. But when extravagant puffs are deliberately cut and dried, with the obvious intent to work up factitious interest in places other than that in which they are prepared and sent forth, the process becomes distasteful. It simply implies that an artist has zealous friends, judicious or injudicious, who seek by extraneous and illegitimate means to produce on the public mind an exaggerated impression of the artist's abilities and success. One objection to this is that other performers of as much or superior merit, but without such energetic or potential friends, are obviously put at disadvantage, and made to appear comparatively insignificant. It is well enough to advertise lyric goods, like others, in a reasonable way; but when such is overstrained, as just now it is in London, the operation smacks of quackery.

"Romeo," the big elephant, who has supplied so many paragraphs for newspapers, died on the 7th inst. at Chicago. The elephant has been traveling about the country killing people, smashing down houses, uprooting outhouses, and playing the mischief generally any time these twenty years; and, consequently, although a heavy loss to its owner, "Romeo's" decease is not unmingled, by comforting reflections. Five of his keepers has the murderous beast at different times destroyed, and his occasional ferocity altogether belied the accepted theory of the elephant's gentleness and urbanity. He stood over eleven feet high, weighed over 12,000 pounds, and was known in the South-west, near anyone where they do not build better than they know, as the "champion bridge smasher." "Romeo" was reputed to be over a hundred years old, and his life has, therefore, been long as well as full of adventure. In his better moments he was affable and condescending; he had many friends in various parts of the country, and his death will no doubt be sincerely mourned, notwithstanding the recollection of his crimes. It is not every quadruped in the world who pays his owner $10,000 a year—and "Romeo" did it here—and if he shed much blood he condoned it, as human prototypes are not axe to do, by making a great deal of money.

A story comes from France about BAZAINE, that has painful interest, and which, if told before in the United States, has escaped our notice. It will be recalled that BAZAINE married the niece of PEDRAZZA, elected President of Mexico in 1833, Miss DE LA PENA. The Emperor MAXIMILIAN wished to make the bride a present; so he placed in the bridal basket a deed for a splendid palace in Mexico, which was formerly used for the French Embassy. MAXIMILIAN told BAZAINE that if he left Mexico and wanted to get rid of the house, he should be allowed 100,000 francs, or $140,000, for it. The Marshal left the country, but it is said refused to take this money, although it was tendered him. Subsequently LOUIS, who happened MAXIMILIAN to Fort Ronton for [illegible], received this house as the price of his treachery. No wonder that the Mexicans are still [illegible] the house of Nassau."

It seems that Judge PRATT did not, as was reported, release FLAHERTY, the Newtown rough, by a writ of error. The statement that he had done so came to us as part of the current news of the day, and, it was, moreover, published as an unquestionable fact by the Brooklyn papers. We are glad to learn that the story was baseless, and that, in this instance, Judge PRATT has not prostituted his judicial authority.

OBITUARY.

Thomas S. Davis.

Hon. THOMAS S. DAVIS, of SYRACUSE, died at Washington on the 2d day of May last, from a complication of disorders, with which he had for some time been afflicted, and from which he suffered greatly. He was born at Middleburg, Va., Aug. 22, 1816, and was the second son of Rev. HENRY DAVIS, D. D., at that time the President of Middleburg, and after ward of Hamilton College, and one of the most distinguished and successful College officers of the last generation.

Mr. DAVIS graduated at Hamilton College in 1831, and numbered among his classmates Hon. DANIEL D. PRATT, United States Senator from Indiana; Gen. JOHN COCHRANE, of New-York, and Rev. Dr. A. C. KENDRICK, Professor of Greek in Rochester University. Immediately after graduation, he commenced the study of law at Syracuse, which continued to be his home during the remainder of his life. After his admission to the Bar, he formed a copartnership in the practice of law with his older brother, HENRY DAVIS, Esq., which continued until the death of the latter in Europe in 1844, and subsequently with JAMES B. LEACH, Esq., which continued from 1850 to 1870, and the practice of both firms was very extensive and lucrative.

As a lawyer, Mr. DAVIS was learned and upright and honorable; as a man of business he was quick, resolute and sagacious, and his aptitude and skill, guided by his excellent and mature judgment, caused him to be greatly sought after and prized as an associate and leader in many important business enterprises which owe much of their prosperity and success to his forming hand, and his judicious and far-seeing management.

Mr. DAVIS was a Whig and Republican in politics, inclined to be conservative, but always taken firm ground in favor of the distinctive principles which controlled his party, but although of such decided opinions he was not a partisan, and could hardly be called a politician.

In 1862, after a caucus unusually spirited and prolonged, he was nominated and subsequently a member of Congress, and represented the Twenty-third District in the Thirty-eighth, and also in the Thirty-ninth Congress, with great credit to himself and advantage to his constituents, and to the country at large. His experience, sagacity and judgment made him invaluable in the committee room, and his speeches on the floor of the House were always listened to with great satisfaction.

Mr. DAVIS possessed fine literary attainments, and extensive and varied reading gave enjoyment and dignity to a life which seemed fully occupied with the pressing pecuniary and absorbing demands of business. He wrote well, and some of his occasional articles and addresses are models of finished style and forcible diction. An address delivered by him at Syracuse, on the occasion of the death of DANIEL WEBSTER, demonstrates at once his ability as a writer, and his hearty devotion and attachment to the Defender of the Constitution.

He leaves a widow, Mrs. SARAH M. DAVIS, one son, Mr. ALEX. H. DAVIS, of Syracuse, and one daughter, Mrs. ERNEST DYKMAN, of Washington.

As the lawyer, the scholar, the citizen, and the friend, Syracuse mourned his departure and rendered a feeling tribute to his memory.

Alfred Crowquill.

Mr. ALFRED HENRY FORRESTER, better known by the above nom de plume, died suddenly in London on May 26, from heart disease. Born in 1804, he entered upon literary and artistic pursuits at an early age, displaying a versatility which augured well for the future. He was associated with THEODORE HOOK in the first numbers of COLBURN's New Monthly, and with Father PROUT, Dr. MAGINN, "Ingoldsby," and ALBERT SMITH in Bentley. He was also one of the early contributors to Punch. The London Times adds: "All who have read his later works will allow that he was a writer of no ordinary talents. Among other things he could dash off a little tale, with rare humor, infuse much spirit into a song, and win the attention of children by such works as the Careless Shepherd and Fairy Foundling. From the time of M. JULLIEN and Mr. CHARLES KEAN in Christmas last his name was occasionally before the public as an author of burlesques. Nor were his talents confined to literature. As an artist he produced no less an impression. His drawings on wood, his etchings, his caricatures, his pen and ink drawings, were often whimsicality. Perhaps the best proof of his talent in this respect is to be found in his sculptural sketches. But his accomplishments did not end even here. His modeling of the porcelain statuette of 'A Memorial of the Great Exhibition of 1851,' a child leading a hog by a floral halter, and his statuette of WELLINGTON bear out the statement. From early life he enjoyed the friendship of some of the greatest celebrities of his time, and it is said that those who have heard his conversation will not soon forget him. For some time past he has been engaged on a new book."

The Brooklyn Orphan Asylum.

The Orphan Asylum Society of the City of Brooklyn have removed to their new building on Atlantic-avenue, between Brooklyn and Kingston avenues, where they will hold a reception this evening from 4 to 10 o'clock. Dedicatory services will take place at 3 P. M., in which Rev. Drs. R. S. STORRS, Jr., N. H. SCHENCK, H. W. BEECHER and others are expected to participate.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

Judge McCunn's Case.

The State Senate will meet in extra session on Tuesday night, "to take proceedings for the removal of JOHN H. McCUNN from the office of Justice of the Superior Court of the City of New-York." The proceedings in the case of McCUNN differ from those to be taken in regard to BARNARD, inasmuch as the House contented itself with a simple recommendation to the Governor for his removal, instead of presenting articles of impeachment against him. The general indictment against McCUNN is, however, specific enough, since it plainly declares that, "in the opinion of this House, said testimony sustains said charges (submitted by the Judiciary Committee) to an extent showing said corrupt conduct in office." This decision of the Assembly was not arrived at on mere ex parte evidence. The Judiciary Committee heard testimony on both sides, and allowed the lawyers for the defense to make every possible effort for their client. After a careful review of both sides of the case, that very able Committee distinctly recorded a verdict of guilty, in which the House, with both sides of the evidence before them, emphatically concurred. Had articles of impeachment been preferred against McCUNN, we might have been saved the scandal of seeing this man, already branded as corrupt, continuing to dispense justice in the Superior Court of New-York. We should also have had the satisfaction of seeing the Senate reinforced by the character, legal attainments, and votes of the seven Judges of the Court of Appeals. But the fact of this matter being left unreservedly to the disposal of the Senate itself, imposes a weighter responsibility upon its members, and will entitle the people to call them to a sharper account than had they been duly constituted a Court of Impeachment.

It should be distinctly remembered by the public that a great deal of "influence" will be used to induce Senators to absent themselves from the meeting at Saratoga on Tuesday next. It may be as well to have it distinctly understood that every member who is not physically unable to attend that meeting, will be a marked man if he stays away. We promise those members who feel disposed to shirk one of the most solemn responsibilities of their position, that their names will not readily sink into oblivion. Like the traitor ORENCO S. WINANS, they will be secure of rather more notoriety than will be quite agreeable to them. A vote of two-thirds of the entire Senate is requisite for McCUNN's removal, and those who cannot be bribed into supporting him, may, he thinks, be bribed into remaining at home. For McCUNN's purpose, the one course is quite as good as the other. The Assembly has declared McCUNN to be corrupt, and the Governor has been constrained to recommend his removal. The Senate must, of course, decide according to the promptings of its own judgment. What the people demand is, that it be guided by this only, and refuse to allow McCUNN's "influence" to interfere with a deliberate and judicial verdict. Only judge McCUNN on the evidence, and the public interest and the purity of the Bench are equally safe. Should other considerations intervene, McCUNN may be acquitted, but there will be no partisan whitewash thick enough to hide the filthiness of the hands that burlesqued justice, by placing him firmly in the seat of justice once more—nor will it be possible to make this community regard him otherwise than a dishonor to the Bench and a discredit to themselves during all the remainder of his term.

Brooklyn Streets.

We trust that the modifications in the City Government of Brooklyn, which were obtained from the last Legislature, will result in increased efficiency in the matter of street-cleaning. It is certain that there is much room for it. Brooklyn men usually pride themselves on the superior cleanliness of their city as compared with New-York, and they may well do so. But this superiority is due, not to the fact that all the streets of that city are better cleaned, but to the smaller proportion of streets in very bad condition. A large part of Brooklyn, lying on "the Hill," and east of it, is not thickly peopled, and is occupied by dwelling-houses alone, and these of a kind that produce but little street dirt. A second portion lies along the slope of the hills facing the bay and river, and every heavy shower does the street-cleaning for it. There is little labor and less expense required to keep these parts of Brooklyn in tolerable condition, though not one square in twenty is kept as the streets of a great city ought to be. The squares which are so kept are cleaned at the expense of property-owners or occupants by private contract.

The remainder of Brooklyn at this time, on the verge of the unhealthy season, is in a positively filthy condition. The region we refer to lies along the river, mostly on low land—especially in South Brooklyn, and is occupied by factories, tenement-houses, small dwellings, numerous groceries, and

POLICE SECRETS.

Robberies and Burglaries Concealed by the Detectives.

How the Thieves Operate in the Down-Town Wards—A Few Instances of Unreported Crimes—Why Criminals Escape Arrest and Punishment.

THE general public have but a slender idea of the extent of crime at present prevailing in this City. Robberies are daily perpetrated by thieves and burglars, the details of which are studiously suppressed by the Police, whilst the many pretenses of furthering the ends of justice. To such an extent has the suppression of fact by the detectives grown, that it has been mooted that the star of the Department appears to be the prevention of crime, rather than the avoidance of public comment on crimes committed, with the authors of which the Police are unable to cope. Conspicuous in this respect is the Fourth Precinct, embracing some of the worst streets in the City. At present it seems as if the criminal classes rule the district. In order to prove that fact, it is only necessary to go through Water-street at night-fall, and observe the gangs of thieves who congregate around the liquor-saloon of JOHN FERRY, an Ex-State Prison convict, at the corner of Roosevelt and Water streets. Among them are WILLIAM DOUGAN and JOE FRAZIER, the river thieves, two of the wildest and most desperate men in the country, besides Big Gunboat, "Yorky," and others. Other ruffians, from various parts of the City, are constantly to be found there, and they habitually insult persons passing by with apparent perfect impunity. Not long since, a sailor who had the temerity to enter FERRY'S place was set upon by the gang, and robbed of $180. The Police did nothing. The ruffians who were in the saloon at the time were not even arrested and searched, as they should have been. Men are nightly plundered of their watches and pocket-books by the pickpockets who lounge in the mock perfumery establishments in Chatham-street, and no arrests are made. A Greenwich-street MAGNUS was knocked down with a blunt club, only a few minutes ago, at the corner of Oliver and Chatham streets, and robbed of his watch and chain by a gang of thieves, who escaped and were never arrested. But the last and most daring operation of the Fourth Ward thieves was successfully made on Monday evening. A gang, evidently from the neighborhood, passed through the hallway of No. 111 South-street, and breaking into the premises over the liquor-store of Mr. DANIEL POLLET, stole $1,300 in cash from a bureau, with which booty they successfully escaped in the dark of the evening. These are but a few of many robberies committed in the precinct, which the Police have not and probably never will make any arrests in.

The Fifteenth Precinct suffered on Monday night also, but not by any fault of the Police. The pawnshop of JOHN S. MCDUFF, on the second floor of No. 77 Bleecker-street, was broken into, a safe forced open, and the contents of McDUFF'S safe stolen. The thieves, who seem evidently well acquainted with the premises, crowded over the roofs, it is thought, from a gambling-house, a few doors off. On reaching the outside, which is a glass door, they demolished a pane, drew back a bolt and quietly walked down the stairs, passed the house they had left, and opened a door on the floor, from the door entering McDUFF'S premises, having a simple lock, was easily opened. These were alleys entirely to the office, but only one of them contained any valuables. A hole was drilled in this and the safe pried open with a jimmy. The jewelry having been secured, the thieves quietly left the way in which they entered, and not having disturbed the front door, the policeman on post of course could not perceive that anything was wrong. Capt. BYRNES, however, knows the persons implicated, and will soon arrest them. There have been no doubt other robberies and burglaries committed in the City, the facts of which have been studiously withheld by the Police authorities. The thieves who commit these depredations, of course know that the Police are aware of their operations, so it cannot be any harm to make the public also aware of the facts.

MUSICAL ARRIVALS.

Distinguished Visitors by the Steamer Rhein—Herr Strauss and His Band.

The steam-ship Rhein, which sailed from Southampton, on the 1st inst. for this port, had on board the celebrated composer, Herr STRAUSS, Mme. PESCHKA, one of the most celebrated European sopranos, the German Band, and the Emperor WILLIAM'S Imperial Cornet Quartette. It has been proposed that they should receive some attention upon their arrival here, and our societies, musicians and citizens desiring to unite in such a reception will be furnished all information in relation to their movements while in this City by conferring with Col. HOWE, New-York member of the Jubilee Executive Committee, at the office of the United States Special Treasury Agency, No. 47 Broadway.

JOHANN STRAUSS was born in Vienna on the 25th of February, 1825. He was the son of the celebrated band-master, who at that time already had achieved great celebrity as a composer of dancing music, and whom his music-loving fellow-citizens had nicknamed "The Waltz King." The elder STRAUSS was descended from a family of soldiers, and intended originally that his son JOHANN should enter the military service, but the extraordinary musical talents which the boy already displayed at an early age, and the prayers of his devoted mother, who even then foresaw the future eminence of her son, induced the father to prepare his boy for the musical career. No pains were spared to give him the best instruction. DRECHSLER and HOFFMAN, the excellent masters of Vienna, taught him composition and counterpoint. His father instructed him in instrumental music. Young STRAUSS proved so good a pupil that in his seventeenth year he had become an excellent violinist, and numerous compositions of his had already received very favorable notice by the critics and the public. Two years afterward, when he was but nineteen years of age, he organized an orchestra of his own, whose performances rivaled those of his father's. From 1846 to 1849 he made a concert tour through Hungary and the Danubian Principalities, exciting everywhere the utmost enthusiasm, and reaping a substantial reward for his efforts. In 1851 the elder STRAUSS died, and the son united his orchestra with that of his father. This united orchestra has since then held the first place among the bands which devote themselves principally to light music, and it visited in the following years nearly every capital in Europe, being received everywhere with the utmost favor. Especially was this the case during the Paris Exposition of 1867, where delighted audiences crowded night after night the vast halls in which STRAUSS' orchestra played his favorite productions of its leader. In 1862, on the occasion of STRAUSS' marriage to the celebrated vocalistress, HENRIETTA TREFFZ, the Emperor of Austria appointed him Hofkapellmeister, and many European sovereigns conferred decorations on him. Although comparatively a young man, STRAUSS has published more than 400 compositions, some of which have reached a sale of upward of half a million copies, and which yield him an annual income of 15,000 florins. In consequence of this and of his large receipts from the performances of his orchestra, STRAUSS is believed to be the wealthiest of living composers. Quite recently he has endeavored to dampen OFFENBACH as a composer of operettas, but only with indifferent success. As a composer of dance music he is considered upon a par with his celebrated father, and to the latter's gifted rival, LANNER.

The Reformed Church Synod—Election of a Professor—Statistics on Women Preaching.

The Reformed General Synod, now meeting in Brooklyn, after devotional exercises yesterday morning, resumed its business deliberations, Rev. Dr. ELMENDORF presiding. A committee of three was appointed to report at an early hour on the best system of collecting benevolent revenue. The election of a Professor of Didactic and Polemic Theology, to fill the vacancy at New-Brunswick Seminary, resulted in the choice of Rev. Dr. A. E. VAN LENDY.

Elder B. SCHENCKLIN stated that he was authorized to say that though the present annual endowment of the Chair only amounted to $40,000, there was a pledge for $20,000 additional should the person selected be acceptable, and Dr. VAN ZANDT being entirely satisfactory to Mr. SUTMAN, the additional sum pledged was added.

In consequence of Dr. VAN ZANDT, he was excused till the morning from giving his decision as to whether he will accept the offered professorship.

After discussion the salary of the professorate chair was fixed at $2,000 per annum, together with a house and whatever additional income might be derived from the endowment.

A recess was taken in the afternoon, and the members of the Synod availed themselves of an invitation to inspect the Government operations at Hell Gate.

At the evening session the question of amendments to the constitution was brought up. One of the amendments offered was the alteration of certain ambiguous parsaeology, which, in its present form, leaves it an open question as to the right of female communicants to vote for elders and deacons of the Church. Considerable discussion was the consequence.

Dr. FERRIS, President of Hope College, said that the question must be considered in the light of Scripture logic and expediency. The question was now no longer a theoretical but a practical one. The Church of the future, in his mind, would be the one which built facts upon the Scripture basis. Female suffrage was not contemplated by the Apostle Paul. The place for the woman is in the family. She was not man's slave, but his helpmate. The speaker believed that rather than the Church should be done by families, the road of the Family voting for all. After much further discussion the question was laid on the table until the regular business of the Synod was disposed of. Rev. Dr. WEST, of Philadelphia, a delegate from the Synod of the Returned Presbyterian Church of America, was received, and the Synod soon after adjourned.

POLITICAL NOTES.

ROBERT TOOMBS is a delegate to the Georgia Democratic State Convention.

Hon. ORSINUS H. BROWNING is named as a candidate for Congress in the Quincy, Ill., District.

The Wheeling (W. Va.) Intelligencer, which has seemed inclined to Grecleyism, has run up the Grant and Wilson flag.

Three of the candidates on the Louisiana Democratic State Ticket are open and declared opponents of GREELEY.

The Philadelphia Age believes that if the Democratic Party can elect GREELEY it can elect anybody whom the Baltimore Convention would nominate.

The administration of Gov. SMITH, of Georgia, is said to have been indorsed by all the Democratic primary conventions that have held. His renomination is probable.

The new Legislature of Oregon will meet on the second Monday in September. The Republican victory in the State was a sweeping one. For four years the State has been under control of the Democrats.

The Richmond (Va.) Dispatch bids Hon. JOHN H. GILMER a long farewell, as "a regular 'come-outer,' who has inconsistently left his Conservative-Whig-Democratic associates and gone over, bag and baggage, to GRANT."

Republican papers in Pennsylvania are inquiring, without obtaining any answers, if the Democratic candidate for Auditor-General in that State is celebrated for anything except for having twice been arrested during the war for sympathizing with the rebels.

The Republicans of the Third District of West Virginia will nominate a candidate for Congress at Charleston today. It is expected their nominee will be Mr. J. BRIDGER WALKER, an energetic young man, who has been doing much for the past three years to build up Republicanism.

The Chicago Times publishes figures to show that should only ten per cent of the Democracy refuse to vote for GREELEY, he would get only eighty-three electoral votes, at the most. And it says that any man who thinks that not more than ten per cent of the Democracy would refuse to vote for him, is a blockhead.

The Executive Committee of the State Temperance Society, in view of the failure to secure temperance legislation, have resolved to hold a State temperance convention in the latter part of July to adopt measures to secure united and efficient political temperance action in future. The convention will probably be held at Saratoga.

Speaking of political matters in Louisiana, the New-Orleans Picayune says: "What induced the Democratic Convention to come to the conclusion that their party was strong enough to carry the election without help, we saw at a loss to say. It was at one time generally conceded that the action of the Liberal element of the State was absolutely necessary to defeat the Radical ticket.

It will come hard for Ex-Gov. WILLIAM SMITH, of Virginia, to support Greeley. He wants to be sure that the Cincinnati nominee will bring enough Republicans straight with him to elect him; and he says, moreover, that he can hardly repress his strong desire to rebuke the insolent presumption which led GREELEY to declare he had received the votes of the Democrats, refused to indorse him and nominated a Democrat at Baltimore.

The long-vexed Capital question is up again in the Connecticut Legislature, two propositions being under discussion. One is a constitutional amendment permitting the people to decide by ballot whether or not Hartford shall be the sole capital. This requires, for the first year's action, the approval of a majority of the members-elect of both Houses of the Legislature. The other proposition asks that New-Haven be authorized to issue bonds for $1,000,000, to be expended in the erection of a new State-house.

The Indianapolis Journal described the Grant and Wilson ratification meeting in that city on Saturday night as immense. It says: "All the veterans of the Republican force were out. Not a man was missing that the Grank and Gile ticket are looked to for help and cheer. There may be some Republicans of the army of '65 in the enemy's lines or on the way there, but nobody would have guessed it from the display at the meeting."

An enterprising firm in Northern New-York determined, shortly after the Cincinnati Convention, to supply the entire Liberal Republican Party of that section with Greeley hats; so they ordered three dozen, and such is the popularity of GREELEY and the hats that they have already sold one of them. It must be admitted that this was disposed of to the editor of a Greeley organ, and that he was granted a "liberal" discount on account of his supposed influence.

Judge T. J. MACKEY's speech, in announcing the vote of South Carolina, at the Philadelphia Convention, was incorrectly reported. What he did say was: "South Carolina, whose first hostile shot fired against the flag of the Union was the herald of GRANT, greeted to-day the unanimous soldier, whose triumphant sword opened the gates of the morning to the two races within her borders, casts her fourteen votes in the interest of law and order, for U. S. GRANT."

Hon. EBENEZER KNOWLTON says he consented to be a candidate for the Republican nomination in the Fifth District of Maine to guard against the Greeley influence. "From my intercourse and acquaintance with Mr. GREELEY while I was in Congress," he says, "and a careful observation of his course since, I think it would be a great national calamity to have him elected, and that calamity would be made still greater, should a majority of Congressmen be elected who sympathize with him." He adds that he shall do what he can to secure Mr. HALE'S election, if that gentleman should be renominated.

The President's letter of acceptance is received by the Boston Transcript as the missive of a plain, blunt man, who speaks right on concerning the honesty of his intentions and his determined purpose to serve the public to the best of his ability. It says: "The people will relish his rather abrupt admission of mistakes—the result of inexperience—and the confession will go far to annul the effect of much malignant criticism that would exaggerate the evil produced by trivial errors. Evidently written in defiance of all recognized methods of partisan electioneering, the production will strike the popular mind rather as the work of a brave man, not turned by elevated station, and will immensely increase the popularity of its author."

Preparations for Mr. Bennett's Funeral.

The following-named gentlemen will act as pall-bearers at the funeral of the late JAMES GORDON BENNETT today:

George Jones, New-York Times; Horace Greeley, New-York Tribune; Charles A. Dana, New-York Sun; Manton Marble, New-York World; George A. Childs, Philadelphia Ledger; Robert Bonner, New-York Ledger; J. M. Bundy, Evening Mail; James Brooks, Evening Express; Hugh J. Hastings, Commercial Advertiser; Frederick Hudson, New-York Herald. The pall-bearers will assemble at the residence of the deceased, No. 425 Fifth-avenue, at 10 o'clock, and the services for the dead will commence half an hour thereafter. Archbishop MCCLOSKEY, who is out of the City, has been telegraphed for to attend the funeral, but in case he is unable to be present, Rev. Father STARRS, Vicar-General, will officiate in his place, and will deliver the funeral sermon. The body will be removed to the family vault at Green-Wood for interment. Leading journals, newspapers, judges, and public officials will be very largely represented at the services.

Inquest in the Case of Wm. Morrissey—Committal of the Four Priesthood.

Coroner YOUNG held an inquest yesterday in the case of WM. MORRISSEY, whose death resulted from injuries received on Sunday night by being struck on the head with a paving-stone during a fracas in West-street, as already reported. The accused, who are charged with being concerned in the murder, are lads under eighteen years of age, belonging to what is known as the "Vestry-street Gang." Their names are MARTIN CONNORS, his brother JOHN, of No. 23 Laight-street; JOHN CLANCY, of No. 220 Greenwich-street, and RICHARD ARRENS, of No. 57 Vestry-street.

A large number of witnesses were examined, and the testimony was very conflicting, but it appears that at a late hour on Sunday night a mere word CALLIARA was reciting some poetry in a liquor-store, in West-street, when the CONNERS entered the place, and one of them spoke rather disparagingly of the recitation. A scuffle ensued. MORRISSEY struck CONNERS, and one of the CONNERS stabbed MORRISSEY in the face with a knife. The CONNERS, ARRENS and CLANCY, then went away, and MORRISSEY discovering that he was stabbed, followed them into Washington-street, when the young ruffians knocked him down, beat and kicked him, and while he lay prostrate, one of them struck him on the head with a paving-stone, fracturing his skull. The four then ran away. MORRISSEY was taken to the Park Hospital, where he died soon after admission. The jury, in their verdict, held all the accused as being concerned in the murder, and Coroner YOUNG committed them to await the action of the Grand Jury.

AFFAIRS IN IRELAND.

The Result of the Election—An Irish Statesman—Strange Bedfellows—Clerical Influence and its Application—Political and Religious Tyranny—The Judge's Position—Liberal Ireland.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, SATURDAY, June 1, 1872.

SOME doubts about the Irish election continue to linger, the matter is so unusual, the Government so strongly interested, that Government agents are busy, and so strongly provocative—this is our condition just now. Sir STAFFORD NORTHCOTE has been questioned in the House of Commons about the attack on the American Government, and has repeated his assertion, but refuses to say more just now. Prof. MONTAGUE BERNARD has lectured on the treaty to his class at Oxford, and contrived to have a wipe at NORTHCOTE for his reckless incontinence of speech. The Professor made no official revelations, deeming himself precluded by his connection with negotiations which are not yet concluded. Mr. DISRAELI is asking whether the lecture was authorized by the Government. To which Mr. GLADSTONE answered, as nearly as he could, "No," and characterized the address as amusing and alarming. These adjectives probably refer to the dissolution of the Professor's state of mind in regard to diplomatic controversy, and express accurately enough the impression generally produced by the confessions of the confidential adviser of the Government. It is understood that the British case and counter-case, as well as several of Lord GRANVILLE'S most important dispatches, were drafted by Prof. BERNARD, who now informs the world that accuracy of expression is comparatively unimportant in international correspondence. If this principle has been followed by the English Government in the recent negotiations, it will account for a good deal that would otherwise be puzzling. Although the Professor does not exactly say so in plain words, the obvious and only meaning of his lecture is to show that the chiefs of negotiations should be to some to a private understanding as to what shall be done, and then to concoct a document which shall render things pleasant for the public, even to the length, if necessary, of concealing or disguising the actual agreement. Prof. BERNARD forgot to explain how the private understanding, which is the slut of this system, is to be recorded, vouched or enforced, and of course the public treaty will throw very little light on it. There is an old saying, that language was intended to conceal thought, and this is only a repetition of it. It is clear that a treaty ought to be framed as politely and inoffensively as possible; but if its bearing is not precise and accurate, it will only be the source of fresh misunderstandings and of renewed strife. By the way, Mr. GLADSTONE, whose evasiveness and hopeless ambiguity of language seem to and worse every day, had a nasty slap in the face—I mean, of course, a Parliamentary slap—administered to him the other day. Mr. BERNAL OSBORNE asked him about a telegram as to the fate of the treaty, which had appeared in the Times, and Mr. GLADSTONE, in his reply, began by saying: "There are several telegrams." Upon which Mr. OSBORNE, starting up, exclaimed, "But the right honorable gentleman must have seen this one," and so forced the reluctant Premier to admit that he knew very well what telegram was meant, and to give an answer about it. The House laughed, and cheered at this home thrust, and the Minister evidently felt it deeply.

THE IRISH ELECTION.

There has not been such a ferment in Ireland for some years as has just been produced by Mr. Justice KEOGH'S judgment in the Galway election case. The inquiry lasted for some fifty and odd days, a great number of witnesses were examined, and the evidence showed in the most unmistakable manner that the Roman Catholic priests had interfered actively and violently in behalf of Capt. NOLAN, the Home Rule candidate, and that he was elected mainly because a great many voters were frightened to vote for his opponent, while others were coerced into voting for him. The Court was daily packed with priests, and many witnesses were afraid to come forward and give evidence in the face of men whom they knew to be meditating revenge for every word spoken against them, and who had the power to do them serious mischief if they chose. Most of those who did appear in the witness-box, or "on the table," as they call it in Ireland, spoke with evident reluctance; and it may be assumed that generally the testimony against the priests was softened down as far as possible. Even then, however, it showed that they had behaved in an utterly outrageous and intolerable manner. It is no secret that the Roman Catholic clergy have made up their minds to assume openly the direction of the political affairs of Ireland. It is through them that the country is to be governed. They are willing to contract with the Government to keep the people in order, if the Government, in return, will surrender national education into their hands. It is suspected that the Government has already gone too far in this direction, and has encouraged hopes which it is afraid to satisfy. At least, the Roman Catholic hierarchy are not satisfied with what they have got, and have come to the conclusion that they could get more, and get it more quietly, if they put some pressure on the Government. Any stick will do to beat a dog, and the Home Rule movement happened to come handy, so the priests took it up. "Down with the landlords," was the cry, and "The land for the people." To the Government the priesthood said: "Let us manage Ireland for you and you shall have peace." To the people they said: "Do as we bid you and you shall have the land divided among you." A solemn farce was arranged to inaugurate Capt. NOLAN'S candidature. NOLAN, who is himself a Galway landlord, had a bad name for evictions. He gave out that the priests had brought him to see the error of his ways, and Sir JOHN GRAY, the editor and proprietor of the Freeman, the official organ of the Roman Catholic Church, and one or two other equally notorious agents of the body, came down to sit in judgment. Of course they decided against Capt. NOLAN, and adjudged handsome compensation to the tenants; and Capt. NOLAN submitted meekly and penitently, or at least appeared to submit. To this hour not a farthing of compensation has been paid. It was enough to get up a precedent which could be used against other landlords. When the representation of the country became vacant, the Archbishop gave the word, and the whole of the clergy under him, from Bishop and Archdeacon down to curates and lecture-swingers, as one began to move heaven and earth in favor of NOLAN. They tricked themselves out in green ribbons to show their national sympathies; rode at the head of their flock on horses caparisoned in green, and accompanied by men bearing banners with the harp, the round tower and the wolf—old Irish emblems—on them, and by bands playing "Tramp, tramp," "Let Erin remember," and other melodies to which a revolutionary meaning has come to be attached.

POLITICS AT THE ALTAR.

Not content with attending meetings and going about among the people canvassing for NOLAN, the priests delivered violent election speeches during divine service, denouncing all who voted for Capt. TRENCH, the Liberal candidate, as reprobates and renegades, who ought to be shunned and despised—one priest suggested "dipping" as well—and who would certainly go to hell. This went on Sunday after Sunday—persecution in this world and everlasting damnation in the next were held out as the certain portion of wretches who dared to oppose Capt. NOLAN. A farmer's wife fell sick, but the priests would not go near her until her husband promised to vote for NOLAN. The privileges of confession and absolution and all the rights and consolations of the Church were similarly made conditional on voters doing as the priests bade them. Persons were even singled out and denounced by name, the priest wearing his vestments and speaking from the altar so as to give solemnity to his imprecations. One of TRENCH'S principal supporters happened to die suddenly. "Of course," said a priest, when he heard of it, "he was bound to die, for I cursed him." Sir THOMAS BURKE was attacked in the street, with his wife in his carriage, and was driven out of the city amid a shower of stones. Tattooing letters were sent round warning people that they would suffer for it if they voted for TRENCH; heads of men visited houses in the dead of night, and, at the instigation of priests, threw a stunning warning; severe beatings were fired into. Of the 500 Irish electors the priests marched their followers into the poll, and gave votes under their hand and seal. They also kept watch over all who came to vote for TRENCH, and by threats of hell-fire, loss of employment, close ill-treatment, and, if need be, to bring them over to their side, brought some armed with cudgels, hold all, and, in some cases, to the polling-place, and actually forced them to vote. This passed with cogent arguments in the shape of cudgel and shoves. It was a fine vote on this side. It was necessary first to drive out every one of the scouts, then to run the gauntlet of the priests, with their curses, mystic signs on the breast, and promises of hell. Even with the protection of an escort of troops, it required no little courage and intrepidity to vote under these circumstances; and it is no wonder that NOLAN had an overwhelming majority. There was a clear case against the priests; indeed they hardly denied it.

THE JUDGE'S POSITION.

Although the case was very clear against them, and the Judge had no alternative but to find them guilty of intimidation, and to take the seat away from Capt. NOLAN and give it to Capt. TRENCH, there can be no doubt that the Judge himself is intolerable to a Catholic, and displayed a degree of personal feeling which was highly unbecoming on the Bench. Mr. Justice KEOGH is himself a Catholic, and in other days, when he was in Parliament, was supposed to be very much under the control of the priests. His attacks on the Government got him a Judgeship; but he is now on the side of order and property. The plain truth is that in Galway, as well as in other parts of Ireland, freedom of election is almost unknown. The people vote either under the direction of the priests or under the dictation of the landlords. They are quite incapable of forming an opinion of their own. Hitherto there has been a kind of understanding that they should act with the landlords. It came out in the course of the trial that a tenant had been bequeathed on condition that the owner should take care that his tenants voted for Lord CLANRICARDE'S man, whoever he might be. A tenant who was called as a witness said that if a landlord gave a tenant a good living, he had a good right to the tenant's vote; and another remarked that, though the priests probably knew best about eternity, he was disposed to take his landlord's opinion on ordinary political questions. And before the Land act passed, landlords not only had, but exercised, a terrible power over the tenant, and could compel them to give their votes as they were directed, under pain of eviction. Since the Land act was passed, the priests have a decided advantage over the landlords, who can no longer deal arbitrarily with their tenants. It does not appear that, though the landlords asked the tenants to vote for TRENCH as the last election, they resorted to anything like serious intimidation, and, in fact, there is now very little they can do in that way. Judge KEOGH, however, went needlessly out of his way to praise the landlords and to justify their influence; and he has by his partiality on this side, and by calling the priests "vampires," "ghouls," "a rabble," "audacious and mendacious," and so on, laid himself open to attack. It was an indecent exhibition, and this is the more unfortunate as the Judge was in substance unquestionably in the right. A great meeting of the clergy has been called for next Thursday. Meanwhile the Judge has been booted and burned in effigy, and at one time there seems to have been some fear that he might himself be substituted for the effigy. Troops were called out, and he was placed under a strong guard.

THE DERBY—THE CRUSH IN LONDON.

This has been the Derby week. The great race of the season was run on Wednesday in the presence of the greatest multitude which is supposed ever to have been assembled on Epsom Downs. This used to be a London holiday, but now it is becoming a British one. People flock to Epsom from all parts of the country, and Londoners are left quite in a minority. The Derby is a festival which falls at the time of year when London is pleasantest, when its parks are in their freshest green, and before the yellowing touch of Summer has been laid on them. In another month everything is beginning to be smoked, and dried, and withered up; but at the end of May the metropolis has many charms. The opera is at its best; the picture shows are open; white bait, for people who still believe in it, is in season. So that, apart from the Derby, it is a good time to come to town. The addition of a few hundreds of thousands of people to the population of London would hardly be perceptible if they were fairly distributed over the whole of it; but naturally, most of the new-comers are collected toward the centre of the town, where the sights are. There are very few places where such a spectacle can be witnessed as the promenade by the side of Rotten Row, as well as the Row itself, on the day after the Derby. For the best part of a mile, along each side, there is a dense mass of gayly attired people, some seated on chairs, others struggling to move on, or rather for the most part quiescent in a stagnant tide. The costumes of the ladies are as bright as those at one of Lady CORISANDE'S croquet parties, and quite throw the rhododendrons into the shade. I don't know much about dress, but I know enough to appreciate the improvement in taste in the direction—boldness or simplicity of material, brightness and variety of color, and elaborate making up in the way of trimmings, tucks, puckers, panniers, loopings-up, and so on. The lasses from the country come out very strong in these daylight assemblies, with their rosy cheeks by the side of the waxen features of the regular London beauty. It is hopeless to think of seeing the pictures at the Academy just now. After the early forenoon the crowd inside struggles for the rest of the day to get out, while another crowd is struggling to get in, and the necessity of self-preservation compels one to taste for art. All the hotels in the central parts of the town are packed to overflowing, and there is a cry for more. One proposal is to have a number of good lodging-houses affiliated to some hotel in the neighborhood, where the lodgers could have the use of common dining-rooms, and so on. The difficulty, of course, is, that this crush comes only at a particular season of the year, and that, in order to make a great establishment pay, it has either to charge high or to make sure of a sufficient clientèle all the year round. Now, however, that London is becoming one of the great resorts—if not the great resort—of the world, a revolution is probably impending in many of its habits and arrangements. It may be rather hard that the exiled Communists should be sent over here to fill the work-houses and raise the poor rates, but at least the Commune did a good stroke for London in dethroning Paris. Grand Lodge of the United States.

The semi-annual meeting of the Loyal Orange Institution of the United States of America commenced yesterday and ended today. The Supreme Grand Secretary reported that the institution had more than doubled its number of members since last July, particularly so in the City of New-York, where the increase had exceeded the most sanguine expectations. The following officers were elected for the ensuing term: JOHN J. BOND, S. G. M.; Mr. CAMPBELL, D. G. M.; R. C. KNOX, S. G. S.; Capt. JOHN FULLERTON, D. G. S.; A. RICHARDSON, S. G. C. After holding a session of two days and transacting much important business the Council adjourned. The proceedings were harmonious throughout.

The Brooklyn Wife-Murder.

An inquest was held last night by Coroner JONES on the body of Mrs. MARY FITZPATRICK, whose death on Tuesday at the Long Island Hospital, from injuries inflicted by her husband, THOMAS, last Saturday night, has been already recorded. A daughter of the deceased, twelve years of age, testified that her father came home drunk on Saturday night, and after quarreling with her mother all the evening, dragged her out of bed about 5 o'clock in the morning, and throwing her upon the floor, stamped upon her with his boots, kicking her in the body, and breaking her jaw-bone with his heavy heels. The jury brought in a verdict in accordance with the facts, and FITZPATRICK was remanded to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. He professes to have no recollection of his brutal behavior, and claims that both his wife and himself were drunk on Saturday night.

The Worcester Mystery.

The Police authorities in this City say that they have not received any official communication from Massachusetts regarding the Scheere mystery. The affair is to be investigated.

STEAM-BOAT DISASTERS.

Over $12,000,000 Worth of Property and 1,473 Lives Lost During the Four Years—Official Report from the Treasury Department.

From the Washington Chronicle, June 12.

An interesting compilation has been made from a report of the Secretary of the Treasury, showing the number of lives and the amount of property destroyed by steam-boat disasters in the United States during the four years ending on the 31st of December last. The total number of steam-vessels inspected during the period mentioned was as follows:

On the Atlantic coast, 3,313; aggregate tonnage, [illegible]

On the rivers flowing into the Gulf of Mexico, 4,189; aggregate tonnage, [illegible]

On the lakes, 6,[illegible]; aggregate tonnage, [illegible]

Total number of vessels inspected, 12,815; total tonnage, 3,564,[illegible]

Average per annum, 3,[illegible]; aggregate tonnage, [illegible]

The aggregate number of casualties for the same period was 826, distributed and caused as follows:

Atlantic coast—by fire, 38; explosions, 18; collisions, 17; sinking, 12; wreck, 12. Total, 107.

Gulf of Mexico—by fire, 48; explosions, 18; collisions, 8; wreck, 3; sinking, 1. Total, 78.

The lakes—by fire, 31; explosions, 8; collisions, 27; wreck, 17; sinking, 12. Total, 95.

Rivers—by fire, 154; explosions, 82; collisions, 37; wreck, 42; sinking, 10. Grand total, 826.

These casualties were accompanied or resulted, so far as known, in the loss of 1,473 human lives, as follows:

On the Atlantic coast—by fire, 13; explosions, 134; collisions, 10; wreck, 128. Total, 285.

Waters flowing into the Gulf—by fire, 455; explosions, 314; collisions, 16; wreck, 14; sinking, 38. Total, 837.

The lakes—by fire, 32; explosions, 38; collisions, 38; wreck, 58; sinking, 4. Total, 168.

Rivers—by fire, [illegible]; explosions, 144; collisions, [illegible]; wreck, [illegible]; sinking, 40. Grand total, 1,473.

The aggregate loss of property by the casualties of the year, 1871, was nearly twenty-three millions of dollars, the aggregate, occurred on the Western and other rivers, excepted under the general designation of "waters flowing into the Gulf of Mexico." It also appears that there were lost in all, by Seller explosions 500 lives, of which 215 or more than half, were lost on the same waters. But the most startling fact is the loss of life by fire, as compared with other casualties. Nine hundred and fifty-one casualties, by fire, caused the loss of 1,473 entire number, are due to the destructive agency. Out of 1,473 lives lost, or considerably more than one-third, owe their untimely termination to this fearful cause. But the proportions, when we compare localities, are more astonishing. No less than 1,000 lives were lost on the waters "flowing into the Gulf," while but 101 are charged to the account of all the rest of the country combined, including the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, their tributaries, and the Lakes. In other words, more than four-fifths of the entire loss of life by the burning of steam vessels occurred in the comparatively inconsiderable Western, southern and south-western rivers.

It appears that in the space of two years four vessels were burned by combustion of coal-oil, and 90 lives were lost; while, if we add two vessels fired by the burning of hay and the 72 deaths, and 40 more from the "burning of a stove, we have an aggregate of 402 lives lost in less than three years on the waters in question, through the direct agency of explosive or combustible articles.

LOSS OF PROPERTY.

The loss of property from the same source foots up as follows:

Accompanied by loss of life..... $[illegible]

Not accompanied by loss of life..... [illegible]

Caused by fire, explosion, collision, wreck, sinking, or other casualty, but without loss of life..... 281,000

Total..... $[illegible]

Here we find upward of a million of property and more than 400 lives destroyed, on these waters in four years, by fire, the origin of which is traced directly to the carrying of combustible articles.

This, however, gives but an inadequate idea of the great amount of property destroyed by combustion of all kinds on those and other waters of the United States during the four years covered by the report from which the following statement is condensed:

Destroyed on the Atlantic coast..... $6,811,[illegible]

Destroyed on waters flowing into the Gulf of Mexico..... [illegible]

Destroyed on the lakes..... 2,022,[illegible]

Destroyed on the rivers..... 1,346,[illegible]

Destroyed on the Pacific coast..... 191,[illegible]

Total..... $12,372,[illegible]

To this must be added for casualties where no return of the amount of property destroyed has been made, and which, taking the returns actually made as a basis, would add, at least, six millions in the aggregate, and we have a total of nearly twenty millions, or about five millions annually.

In transmitting the report from which the foregoing results are derived, the Secretary of the Treasury expresses the opinion that, for various reasons, the statistics thus furnished are more likely to be defective through underestimates than through exaggerated statements of the losses referred to.

The report, as showing the result of four years' experience, may be summed up in brief as follows:

Total number of casualties	[illegible]
Average per annum	111
Average per month	10
Total number of lives lost	1,473
Average per annum	[illegible]
Average per month	30
Value of property lost (estimated)	[illegible],000,000
Average per annum	3,000,000
Average per month	416,[illegible]

More than ten casualties, involving a loss of over $100,000 every month.

THE STEAM-BOAT BILL.

The Steam-boat bill, as passed by the House, contains seventy-two sections. The Senate amendments number 122. Of these the Conference Committee ratified seventy-six, rejected thirty-five, and modified eleven.

Among the rejected amendments are some, considered with reference to the safety of human life, of the most vital importance. Especially is this true of those relating to precautions against fire, the use of camphene, petroleum, &c., the number of watchmen to be employed on steamers, the construction of boilers, the number of boats on steam-boat boilers, the materials used, and the degree of tensile strength required in their construction; the working-pressure to which, when in use, they may be subjected, and the exemption of ferry-boats from part of the restrictions placed on other steam craft. The lobby was too strong for the friends of safety to get their bill through. The existing law will be tried at least until December next.

The total number of casualties for the three years preceding 1871 was 428, or as annual average of 141. The total number for 1871 was 166, a decrease of more than twenty-five per cent. The total number of lives lost during the same three years was 1,131, or an annual average of 377. For 1871 it was 249, a decrease of nearly ten per cent. Two months of the year 1871 had elapsed when the act of Feb. 28 became a law, and at least three more before its practical operation commenced. The regulations under it were not matured until June, and they were subsequently modified in October following. So that, in truth, the favorable exhibit for that year, as shown by a comparison with the previous three years, is due to the operation of the existing law for a period scarcely exceeding six months, while the effort for its wholesale alteration, which commenced before the close of the year, and has been continued ever since, further retarded its successful enforcement. The simple fact that, notwithstanding those embarrassments, it has operated to reduce the annual average of casualties, as ascertained for a period of four years, by twenty-five per cent, and the average annual loss of human life for the same period by ten per cent, is a strong argument in favor of continuing its provisions until they shall have been, as the Secretary of the Treasury suggests they should be, fairly tested.

Illness of Mr. Jefferson.

We learn with regret that a serious affection of the eye has compelled Mr. JOSEPH JEFFERSON to desist from acting in Philadelphia this week, and that it may enforce a temporary but protracted retirement of the artist from public life. The Philadelphia Press supplies information to this effect in shape of an extract from a letter written by Mr. JEFFERSON to a friend. Mr. JEFFERSON says:

"My left eye has been overtaxed by a strain for some time; the pain became so intense that I was alarmed, and called upon Dr. CHISOLM, (one of the celebrated oculists of Baltimore,) who told me that I was threatened with the loss of sight in one eye, and possibly in both. Today I had another examination under the opthalmoscope by the eminent German oculist, Dr. REULING, and I regret to say he gives me the same cheerless intelligence. Nothing can save my sight, unless I at once give up my profession, and submit to be treated with the Rest of sight in one eye, and possibly in both. Today will not only keep me in bed for two days, but confined to darkness for a longer time. Dr. REULING (who will at once perform the operation) gives me every hope of recovery by attending to my case in this his early stage, but cannot take the responsibility if I expose my eye to the necessary glare of the light, or delay it at once submitting to an operation. I would have informed you before, but I am only just in possession of the serious fact."

Personal.

United States Senator A. H. Cragin, of New-Hampshire, and Admiral Inglefield, of the British Navy, are at the Westmoreland Hotel.

State Senator Harrobin, of Vermont, is at the Westminster Hotel. Hon. Lewis A. Ochs, of Ohio, Commissioner of Emigration, is at the Glenham Hotel. Col. John Edwards, of Maine, is at the Coleman House. Judge Field, of Albion, Hon. R. G. Hazard, of Providence, and Hon. J. B. Alley, of Massachusetts, are at the Astor House. Gen. T. B. Clingman and Col. A. W. Woodfin, of North Carolina, and Gen. H. D. Reeves, of Massachusetts, are at the Metropolitan Hotel.

Among the passengers by the Java on this port yesterday were Mme. ARABELLA GOIDDARD and Miss HINGSTONEY. These distinguished artists proceeded without delay to Boston.

ST. LOUIS SANITARIANS.

The City Crowded by Strangers—Special Excursions of Merchants with the Visiting Association.

ST. LOUIS, MO., June 12.—A large number of societies to attend the Sanitarian convention last night and this morning. The weather is clear and very warm. The streets are thronged with citizens and strangers, and all the space in the vicinity of the Turners' Hall is densely packed with spectators. The entire city is in holiday attire.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The following is a review in brief of the business transactions at the Exchange yesterday, Wednesday, June 12. JOSEPH McGUIRE, by order of the Supreme Court in foreclosure, under the direction of JACOB A. CROSS, Esq., referee, sold the premises known as No. 185½ Hamilton-street, near Catharine-street, embracing a lot 27.4 by 100.6, with a four-story brick tenement-house on the front thereof, and a three-story frame house on the rear, for $18,500. Purchased by M. ISAACS. The same auctioneer also offered at auction, by order of the Supreme Court in partition, under the direction of JAMES H. COLEMAN, Esq., referee, two two-story and attic brick houses, with stores, and lots—latter in size together 27.8 by 100—known as Nos. 122 and 124 West Broadway, between White and Walker streets, but without effecting a sale, bids up to the amount of $21,100 only being received. The sale was accordingly adjourned for two weeks. The upset price on the premises, it was stated, was $28,000. JAMES M. MILLER adjourned the legal sale of the house and lot No. 2 East Eighth-street and Seventh-avenue, between Third and Fourth-avenues, until Monday, June 24. No other dealing in city realty was attempted. E. H. LUDLOW & Co., as an executor's sale, by order of CAMBRIDGE LIVINGSTON, Esq., executor of the estate of JAMES B. MURRAY, deceased, disposed of six ville plots, fourteen, containing in all 160 acres of land, known as the "Pine Hill" property, situated in Westchester County, and situated on Highland-avenue, midway between Yonkers and Riverdale Stations of the Hudson River Railroad, about two miles from each. The property sold for $21,500 in the aggregate, a very fair result. Plots Nos. 1, 2, and 3 were bought by M. T. PARSHAL, and the remaining three by B. MURRAY, one of the heirs to the estate. A detailed report is appended. Messrs. LUDLOW & Co. also offered at public auction a desirable dwelling, with about eleven acres of land, located at Mount Vernon, Westchester County, situated on the east side of the White Plains road, adjoining the line of the New-York and New-Haven Railway, but as no bid over the sum of $14,000 (the upset price) was received, the property was withdrawn. A stock sale by MULLER, WILKINS & Co., reported below, closed the day's business. In regard to the suburban auction held at Wyoming, N. J., yesterday, by A. D. MELLICK, JR., & BRO., full particulars will be found in the report of to-morrow. The sale of twenty-one villa plots by JERE. JOHNSON, Jr., at New-Brighton, Staten Island, announced to occur yesterday, did not take place as expected, the property having been disposed of advantageously at private sale, and for the present withdrawn from the public market.

The two suburban sales held on Tuesday, June 11, resulted quite successfully, and were both largely attended. At Flushing, Long Island, JERE. JOHNSON, Jr., sold 187 lots for $23,290 in the total, the average being about $750 each. Only about one-half of the property was offered, however, for the reason that the improvements in progress are not yet completed, and the grounds are not as yet fully developed. The remainder of the lots will probably be offered in October. The lots sold on Tuesday are located respectively on Jamaica-avenue, and on Morse, Union, Hallock, Bryant, Whittier and Tennyson streets. The purchasers were mainly from this City, Brooklyn and Williamsburg, although one block, containing fifty-four lots, was purchased entire by SIDNEY A. SANDS, of Stamford, Conn. At Ocean Point Station, Rockaway, Queen's County, Long Island, at the sale conducted by E. H. LUDLOW & Co., on Tuesday, forty-two plots, containing some 200 lots, were disposed of, at from $25 to $60 per city lot, the average being about $50 per lot, while the aggregate of the sale reached the sum of about $18,000. The prices were somewhat better than those realized at the first sale, held in May, when 100 more lots were sold. The property, which is owned in part by THOMAS E. and A. MANDEVILLE, and the tract of land is a valuable one. Another sale will probably be held during the latter part of this month, due announcement of which will be made. At Yonkers, Westchester County, on Saturday, June 8, under a Supreme Court order, Jos. McGUIRE sold a plot of nine lots fronting on Grist-mill, Prospect and Clinton streets, for $5,750.

For today, at the Exchange, several sales of City real estate are billed, all worthy of attention. At Dunellen, N. J., also, today, on the ground, at 12 M., A. D. MELLICK, JR., & BRO. will offer thirty-three acres of valuable land, subdivided into 112 villa plots, well located, and at Rutherford Park, N. J., on the property, at 11½ A. M. LUCKY & SHUTE will dispose of 400 desirable building lots, together with four finished cottages and thirty plots of land, with a frontage on the Passaic River of 1,600 feet. This last proposed transaction should attract the special notice of investors generally. Special train for first-named sale will depart from foot of Liberty-street, at 11 o'clock, and for second from foot of Barclay and Christopher streets, at 10½ o'clock.

PRIVATE SALES.

The following transactions are reported: Resale of the Continental Hotel, Broadway, for $150,000; sale of the Mills property at Roslyn, N. J., to CHAS. MARTIN, of this City, for $24,000; sale of the Jackson property at Port Washington to DANIEL A. COXWELL, of this City, for $9,000; sale of twenty-five acres of land at Babylon, Long Island, by DAVID T. COWLES, of that place, to HAZARD HORTON, of Brooklyn, for $3,500, and sale of six acres of land, with dwelling, at Islip, Long Island, by ROBERT T. MEEKS, for $12,000. Sales of City real estate recently made by the brokers named, are also reported as follows:

Work of the Discontented and the Employers.

Meetings of the Shirt-Cutters, Coopers, Cabinet-Makers, Iron and Metal-Workers, and Others—The Manufacturers' Resolutions.

Many of the trades which employ large numbers of men have succeeded in the eight-hour matter, others have either failed altogether or partly, and as fast as they disappear from view, either through success or failure, others come to take their places and attract public attention. The most important event transpiring yesterday, in relation to the success of the eight-hour system, was the meeting of the pianoforte manufacturers at No. 48 Union-square. Mr. HAZELTON presided, and Mr. WIMAN acted as Secretary. The Committee appointed at a previous meeting to draw up a statement of the views of the manufacturers, submitted the following preamble and resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The expenses of manufacturing pianos in New-York are now enormously high. Rather exceeding those of any other place, owing to the exceedingly high rents, taxes, value of ground, scarcity of capital, labor, wages, &c., and that by according to the demands of our workmen our problem would be diminished twenty per cent, while, without any advance in the price of labor, would alone increase the cost of every piano almost fifteen per cent, while with an additional advance of twenty per cent in the price of labor it would amount to an increase of fully one-third in the cost of every piano; and

Whereas, The great bulk of our trade consists in the manufacture of the cheaper grades of pianofortes, with plain exterior, which are bought by the great mass of people throughout the country, and that such a sudden and heavy advance in the cost and price of pianos would place them beyond the reach of people of moderate means; and

Whereas, From reliable information received from all the principal cities and towns of America where pianos are manufactured, we find that not the slightest indications exist that attempts have been or will be made to enforce the eight-hour system in the piano trade outside of New-York City; and

Whereas, Unlike the trades of a similar local character, pianofortes are sold all over this continent and foreign countries, in close competition with pianos manufactured in Boston, Baltimore and other cities, where they are produced under such favorable circumstances that a price would place the New-York manufacturers at an immense disadvantage, would vastly reduce the demand for our pianos and drive the trade elsewhere, ultimately resulting in the discharge of our workmen for want of work, thus proving most disastrous to both employer and employes; and

Whereas, The financial condition of our workmen would not be improved, but actually damaged, by their working less time and earning the same wages as heretofore, so that, by the rise of all the necessaries of life consequent upon the general or partial introduction of the eight-hour system in other trades, their wages would be insufficient to procure the same comforts for themselves, their wives and children, as at present; and

Whereas, We, the undersigned, pianoforte manufacturers of New-York City, unanimously refuse to accede to the demand of our workmen, not from any spirit of antagonism or unkindness to them, but to protect our own interest, and become absolute necessity to prevent the ruin of our trade compels us to do so. We therefore agree that, while remitting the question of wages to each individual manufacturer, our factories shall continue to be kept open as at present before, and that we shall firmly resist any attempt to abridge the number of daily hours of labor.

Resolved, That we will employ all good and intelligent workmen to the exclusion of their place, provided such shall not be accompanied by insurgent or disorderly conduct on the part of our workmen, without reduction of present wages, for those in their employ.

Resolved, That if they refuse to accede to this request, we strike all together on that date.

Resolved, That we avoid all personal violence or breach of the laws.

The journeymen butchers held a meeting preliminary to a strike at the Casino in Houston-street, last night, and took measures to form a union. Their object is to obtain an increase of wages, which now average from $10 to $15 per week.

The tinsmiths and sheet-iron workers received considerable accessions to their numbers last night. There are about 1,500 men working at this trade. They are not yet ready to strike.

The wheel-wrights and blacksmiths still continue on strike, and a number of new shops were reported yesterday as having given in. About half of those who struck are now employed on the eight-hour system.

The coach painters have yet about 200 men on strike, while 150 are working on the new system.

The blank-bookbinders are making arrangements for a strike.

The German furriers met yesterday at No. 274 Grand-street, and took into consideration a new price-list, presented by a committee involving an increase in their rate of wages, the eight-hour system being impracticable.

The marble-cutters met last evening at Clinton Hall, Twenty-third-street. The Executive Committee reported that all the trade except three shops have acceded to the demands of the men.

The journeymen carpenters of Newark have appointed a committee to ascertain the views of the members of the different trades on the eight-hour question.

The coopers in ten different shops in Jersey City yesterday struck for ten cents extra on each barrel, and for nine hours as a day's work on Saturday. The men number 250, and their action is believed to be preliminary to joining the general strike for eight hours.

Waifs for the West.

An interesting band of young unfortunates left the office of the Children's Aid Society, yesterday, to be provided with homes in the Far West. A new feature has been added to the emigration department of the Society in extending aid to destitute parents who desire to go West with their children. Hundreds of poor families are thus put in the way of providing for their children, who, remaining in the City, would probably grow up in ignorance and depravity.

The question is often asked, Where do all these homeless boys come from? It is worth while to visit No. 19 East Fourth-street on the day a company leaves for the West, and have the question answered by the poor lads themselves. Some of them tell a very sad tale indeed. There are tales of orphanage, drunkenness, desertion, cruelty and inhumanity beyond belief. Some of these waifs can give no account of themselves whatever. There was such a case in the party that left yesterday—a colored boy of the darkest shade. He sat on the floor surrounded by a crowd about his own size, who

YACHTING.

FIRST Annual Regatta of the Columbia Yacht Club—Good Sailing.

The Columbia Yacht Club opened the regular yachting season yesterday by holding their first annual regatta. A better day for yachting could not have been had. There was skipping room from the outset, just enough to bring out the best sailing qualities of the competing boats, which were divided into three classes: Cabin sloops—Blackbird, Beer, 32 feet 10 inches, Capt. W. HOWIT; Frolic, 36 feet 7 inches, Capt. E. NOBLE. First-class open sloops—Lillie, 26 feet 3 inches, John A. WEAVER; Journeyman, 25 feet 2 inches, Vice-Commodore MCWHIRT; George E. Sherman, 26 feet 3 inches, C. S. Gaul. Second-class open sloops—Mazeppa, 24 feet, CASEY and CARPENTER; Germania, 23 feet 1 inch, Samuel HENDE; Rose, 22 feet 10 inches, GEORGE ROBERTS; Crystal, 21 feet 9 inches, FREEMAN and HOLLINGSWORTH. The allowance of time in each class was one and a half minutes to the foot, deck measurement. The course was from a stake-boat anchored off the club-house, foot of Fifty-seventh-street, to Fort Lee, thence returning to a stake-boat off the coal dock, Weehawken, to the club-house, sailing over the course twice. The steamer Fort Lee was chartered to convey the judges and invited guests, and it was tolerably well-crowded by a very pleasant company.

At 11:15 the signal gun to get ready was fired, followed five minutes after by the second gun to start. The report had scarcely died away when the Frolic had her jib hoisted and was off, the little Sherman being close on her heels and soon passing her and leading the fleet. The run up was dead before the wind, and when off Bull's Ferry the boats were sailing along in the following order: Sherman, with a good lead, Frolic, Journeyman, Lillie, E. Rose and the Germania bearing the opposite shore. At this point a commotion was occasioned by a small sail-boat with three persons in capsizing. Fortunately they were speedily recovered, having suffered nothing worse than a good ducking and the loss of hats and coats. Just before reaching the upper stake-boat, the Journeyman, E. Rose, Lillie and Frolic, which were all in a bunch, caught a favorable puff of wind that enabled them to sweep by and go to the Sherman. The stake-boat off Fort Lee was passed on the first round in the following order: G. E. Sherman, E. Rose, Frolic, Lillie, Journeyman, Germania, Crystal. The return was a beat to windward, and a succession of tacks was made to reach the lower stake-boat. The Sherman had a clear lead of about half a mile, the second place being contested by the position of the boats was that of the Journeyman, which took the second place on the way down. The second round showed no variation, but on reaching the upper stake the Journeyman turned on the wrong side and fouled the stake-boat, causing her to lose her anchor. It is evident that her first race, The Crystal meanwhile had previously met with an accident and had to withdraw. Soon after turning the stake the Lillie carried away her jib and had to be taken in tow or she would have come in second.

The home stake-boat was reached in the following order and time:

	H.	M.	S.
George E. Sherman	1	17	30
Journeyman (ruled out)	1	17	30
Frolic	1	18	30
Lillie	Not timed.
E. Rowe	Not timed.

The winning boats were, in their respective classes, the Frolic, George E. Sherman and Germania.

The judges on board the Fort Lee were ex-Judge CONNOLLY, Commodore MORTON, New-Jersey Yacht Club, and Messrs. MATTESSON and SIMONSON. Commodore BEEKERKROOT, of the Harlem Yacht Club, was also a guest.

Umpire, Mr. Pinkham, of Cambridge.

[NOTE.—The first game was won by the Athletics, by a score of 10 to 7.]

LONG ISLAND.

A fire was discovered about 1 o'clock yesterday morning in the grocery frame store on Central-avenue, near Seventh-street, Hunter's Point. The flames were speedily extinguished, when it was discovered that a bedfire attempt had been made to burn the house. Suspicion points to an incendiary, the fire being found in the place. A family resided on the second floor, but was awakened ere the fire was out. The Police are investigating the matter.

WESTERN ISLAND.

Last evening the Stapleton Yacht Club held a meeting, in their club-house, on business relating to the Summer regattas.

To-morrow the ladies of the Baptist Church at Marner's Harbor will hold a strawberry and ice-cream festival, which will be continued till Saturday evening. The proceeds will be devoted to the benefit of the Church.

NEW-JERSEY.

Three prisoners escaped from the Woodbury Jail, on Tuesday, by forcing the lock and afterward climbing the wall.

AVERY, the Cresskill murderer, now under sentence of death, has friends who are circulating petitions for his pardon.

The Jersey City Board of Aldermen has voted $2,200 for the celebration of the Fourth of July. Mayor O'NEILL has heretofore vetoed resolutions of this kind, and it is believed will again do so.

Arrangements have been completed for the annual excursion of the New-Jersey Editorial Association. The trip this year will be to Atlantic City, and will occupy from the 26th to the 29th instant.

GARRETT VREELAND, who was convicted with WM. H. BURNETT of conspiracy against the corporation of Jersey City, has resigned his position as member of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, and his resignation has been accepted by the Board of Aldermen.

The 125th annual Commencement of Princeton College will commence on Sunday, the 25th inst., with the delivery of the Baccalaureate Address by Rev. Dr. MCCOSH. On Monday the Class-day services will be held, and on Tuesday the oration by Senator FRELINGHUYSEN will be delivered.

Five patients, inmates of the Small-pox Hospital on Throckmorton-street, Hoboken, have escaped from the Contagious Disease Hospital of Dr. PINDAR, the physician in charge, alleging that he is incompetent and unqualified to fill the position. The matter will be investigated by the Health Commissioners.

The tender of the locomotive attached to the 9½ train from Paterson, last evening, was thrown off the track east of the Hackensack River, by a telegraph pole which had been blown down and fallen across the rails. The tender was entirely wrecked, and travel was delayed an hour or two.

The case of WILLIAM GRUDIER, convicted in the Morris County Court of Oyer and Terminer of murder in the second degree, was before the Supreme Court, in Trenton, yesterday. The argument, which occupied the entire forenoon session, hinge upon a motion for a new trial. Decision was reserved.

The friends of JAMES M. SCOVIL met at the American Hotel, Trenton, yesterday, to organize the campaign. Members were eighteen persons present. They decided that no appointment of a Greeley Central Executive Committee was needed until after the State Convention, which is to be held in Newark on the 20th inst.

The man killed on the New-Jersey Railroad at Metuchen, last week, is now believed to have been that of L. C. PERKSON, who was discharged from the State Prison at Trenton about two weeks ago, after serving a sentence of three years for forgery. A "C. P." were found on one of the arms, and in a pocket an order for $40 on the prison authorities.

PATRICK DOLAN was yesterday arraigned in the Hudson County Court to answer the charge of assault on T. B. SMITH and Officers Bows and HOWARD on St. Patrick's Day. The affray grew out of the refusal of the marshals of the procession on that day to allow persons to cross its line of march. This is one of several cases resulting from the fight.

Report of Judges upon GILT AND BRONZE CHANDELIERS, GAS CHANDELIERS AND BRONZES, exhibited by MITCHELL, VANCE & CO.

"We fully agree that the Bronze Pieces are superior in Artistic Design, Workmanship and Finish, to any Chandelier and Bronze in the world. The Bronze, especially the large piece which are copied from the French, are the best productions of this country. The Gilt Chandeliers are equal to best manufactures of Old World, and superior to those which have been heretofore acknowledged the best in the world. The Glass is of unusual brilliancy. They rank all."

A. W. B. OGDEN, President.
JOHN W. CHAMBERS, Act. Recording Secretary.
"SAM'L D. TILLMAN, Corresponding Secretary.

We cordially invite an examination of our varied and most extensive stock, and particularly of our CRYSTAL GAS FIXTURES, which, in variety and excellence, are not equaled in quality in the world.
